Clark and Gammon to Launch Campaign for $45,000 Today

Methodist Board of Education Promises To Double Amount Raised Here for Negro Institutions.

With the board of education of the Methodist Episcopal church ready to double the amount sought from white citizens of Atlanta, the campaign of Gammon Theological Seminary and Clark University, valuable aids in the progress of negro education for more than half a century, will open today with $45,000 as the subscription goal.

Urgent needs of Gammon and Clark are to be met by the money raised in the drive, and, in the event the entire amount of $45,000 is realized, the Methodist Episcopal board of education will meet that sum with double the amount, it was said. This is the first time in the history of the institutions that Atlanta has been asked to aid.

M. S. Davage, president of Clark University, Wednesday said that "this institution now attracts students from many states and from Africa, and is an asset to Atlanta, not only culturally but financially. Its annual budget, exceeding $100,000 is spent here, as are the purchases of the hundreds of students who enroll each year. During the 62 years of its history it is safe to say that Clark University has brought to Atlanta more than $4,000,000, including buildings, salaries and expenditures of students. In addition to this, out of the land which was bought 50 years ago, it was given without cost two sites upon which Atlanta public schools are now located. The Capitol View public school for whites and the South Atlanta public school for negroes."

Clark is rated as an "A" college in Georgia, North Carolina, Texas and other states. "It is an emergency that sees Clark University, with its long record of service," President Davage said.

"Its library, science equipment and teaching force are inadequate to meet the demand of modern educational requirements. The two colored confer-

Only Specialists Authorized to Install the Steel-riveted and Gas-tight Lennox Torrid Zone Furnace

Proper planning and installation absolutely necessary if your furnace is to perform satisfactorily. Every home presents a different problem. Every door and window seems lost heat. The construction of your house, its location and exposure, must also be considered.

Accurate formulas governing pipe sizes and furnace capacities have been developed through years of experimental work at the University of Illinois, resulting in what is known as the Standard Code of the National Warm Air Heating Association. Torrid Zone dealers guarantee and install according to those formulas—and are granted the franchise solely on their ability to follow the scientific principles of the standard code.

On proper installation the Lennox Furnace Company guarantees to replace any part of the Torrid Zone, except grates or liners, if it wears out within ten years from date of purchase. The average life, however, based on actual service records, is 21 years.

Gammon Theological Seminary, now under the presidency of the Rev. F. H. Clapp, D. D., has brought into Atlanta trade in the last 48 years an expenditure for all purposes of one and one-third million dollars.

"It now needs facilities to double its attendance if the demands of the race for a trained ministry are to be met," President Clapp said.

"One of the most urgent needs is for a great summer school of six weeks for rural and town ministers. With the dormitories of Gammon and Clark open, 300 can be provided for."

Work for Negroes.

"Gammon Theological Seminary and Clark University for 50 years or more have done a work for the religious education and equipment of the negro race, the value of which is now recognized as never before."

While the campus of each joins the other, they are institutions under separate boards of trustees and they helpfully co-operate in their work. Gammon Theological Seminary was opened in 1883 as the first regular school, with moderate equipment, for the training of negro ministers. Its historic records hold the element of romance. Through Bishop H. W. Warren, then resident bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church in Atlanta, an old minister in Illinois, Elijah Gammon, who had amassed a fortune, was induced to give half of the sum to build the theological hall, and $20,000 for endowment.

Thirskield Opened Work.

The burden of opening the work was laid upon a young minister in Cincinnati, the Rev. W. P. Thirskield, now a bishop. He had been deeply moved by taking part that spring in an institute for colored ministers, conducted in Nashville by Dr. John H. Vincent, of chautauque fame.

Thirskield was thus led to see a race of millions with whom the church was the center of power. "If the people were to be held to the church, a trained ministry was imperative," Bishop Thirskield said Wednesday. Gammon furnished him a great missionary task, although it began in a humble way with two students and an income of $1,200, and for 17 years he built his life into the work, which rapidly expanded.

At first cast off by the white group, his public service for temperance reform, the Sunday school enterprise and interracial justice and good will won ever widening recognition until the pulpit and platform of Atlanta and the south were open to him.

At the fourth annual opening in 1896 Dr. Atticus G. Haygood, later bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, said: "It may well be questioned whether any single institution in the southern states could not be better spared. I think I may say, without exaggeration, that Gammon Theological Seminary is in many respects the most important single experiment made by Protestantism in this country—so far as I know, in any country—in the momentous matter of teaching and training colored preachers."

$180,000 Added.

Mr. Gammon had that year added $180,000 to the endowment, and at his death some years later a total of nearly half a million was realized, the income from which has been the support of the seminary for teaching, equipment and buildings. That Bishop Haygood's estimate was not an exaggeration is verified by the record of this school of the prophecies, as shown by the following list of positions filled by its 739 graduates and 805 non-graduates.

Six have become bishops in the several Methodist churches; two editors; one hundred and thirty-one district superintendents; thirteen secretaries and general church officers; thirteen college presidents; ten professors; nine missionaries to Africa, and three Bible society field secretaries, the latter having distributed over 1,750,000 copies of scripture.

HIGH COURT REVERSES BANKER'S SENTENCE

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 15.—(AP)—The United States circuit court of appeals today reversed a decision of Judge H. B. Anderson, Memphis, in the case of William R. Pharr, Memphis, who had been sentenced to four years in Atlanta federal penitentiary upon conviction of misapplying funds of the Union Planters Bank & Trust Co., of Memphis.

The higher court held the district court had erred in its charge to the jury and the case was remanded for new trial.

Pharr was convicted on an indictment charging he and J. Ramsey Beaucamp, Memphis, misapplied funds and credits of the Union Planters Bank & Trust Co.

Beaucamp formerly was vice president of the bank and Pharr was a Memphis cotton broker. The former was named as principal in the indictment and Pharr was named as an abettor.

It was alleged Beaucamp misapplied funds and that Pharr drew drafts on brokerage companies to cover cotton to obtain money. The drafts totaled $598,000 it was charged.

Beaucamp pleaded guilty and was sentenced. Pharr, indicted in 1925, was convicted in 1929.

GOVERNOR SPENDS NIGHT AT PRISON

PARCHMAN, Miss., April 15.—(AP) After spending a day and night at Parchman state penitentiary investigating charges of cruelty in the prison Governor Theo G. Bilbo said today he was "convinced" that the charges were groundless.

Mrs. W. A. Montgomery, trustee of prisons for the central Mississippi district, recently criticized the penitentiary administration for alleged inhuman treatment of prisoners.

"It is my opinion there is nothing in the charges that brutality is being practiced on Parchman convicts," Governor Bilbo said before returning to the capital. "Rigorous prison discipline is being maintained, but aside from that there is nothing to indicate there have been extreme measures of any kind."

5 OFFICIALS INDICTED FOR DEFRAUDING BANK

NEWBERN, S. C., April 15.—(AP) Five former officers of the National Bank of New Bern were indicted today by a federal grand jury on charges of misapplying funds of the bank in making loans to insolvent corporations in which they were interested.

Those indicted were William W. Griffin, former president of the bank; Hugh P. Beal, vice president; E. C. Rea, E. H. Meadows and John Haywood Jones, officers or directors.

One charge against Griffin, Rea and Meadows alleged "intent . . . to injure and defraud" the bank of $6,500.

Write a slogan for free wheeling $10,000.00 in cash prizes

Here's a contest that's going to give you the thrill of your life whether you win a prize or not. It's going to thrill you because it's going to introduce you to Free Wheeling—the most sensational advancement in automobile engineering since the electric starter.

You're going to learn that there's new zest, pleasure and fascination in motoring—new-found economy and safety.

For, of course, in order to win one of the 1072 cash prizes in this $10,000.00 Free Wheeling Slogan Contest, you will first want to go Free Wheeling. You will want to find out from actual driving experience what Free Wheeling is and what it does.

PIERCE-ARROW LINCOLN STUDEBAKER HUPMOBILE

alone offer you Free Wheeling with positive gear control

Since its introduction last July, Free Wheeling has eclipsed all the other motor car improvements of the past twenty years. It is acknowledged today as the greatest forward step since the electric starter.

For the first time in the history of the automobile, car momentum, hitherto wasted, is harnessed and put to work.

Every time you take your foot off the throttle in a conventional car your motor fights your car. Your motor should pull the car, and not be pushed by it.

The instant you lift your foot from the throttle of a Free Wheeling Pierce-Arrow, Lincoln, Studebaker or Hupmobile, the engine drops to idling speed but the car glides smoothly ahead—propelled by momentum without engine drag.

You ride on momentum but the car is always in gear and under complete control. You travel five speedometer miles for four engine miles—save 15% to 20% on gasoline and oil. Chassis strain is cut down—repair costs are reduced.

No other car is so easy to drive as a Free Wheeling Pierce-Arrow, Lincoln, Studebaker or Hupmobile. There is less to do and less to worry about.

You shift back and forth between high and second—even when traveling rapidly—without touching the clutch. The full braking power of your engine can be utilized even more readily than in a conventional car.

You are safer with Free Wheeling. Traffic officials from one end of the country to the other have tested Free Wheeling with positive gear control and pronounce it a new measure of safety to driver and public.

Even if you are only thinking about a new car, remember that Free Wheeling owns the future. Look ahead. Ask yourself: How new is any "new car" without Free Wheeling? How much will it re-sell for a year or two from now?

Don't miss this opportunity of learning all about Free Wheeling—the sensational improvement that is making every car of the old order out of date.

SPAIN'S AMBASSADORS IN THREE CITIES RESIGN

Washington, London, Berlin
Officials Quit Diplomatic Posts.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—(P)—Ambassador Padilla of Spain today resigned his diplomatic post as a result of the overthrow of the Spanish monarchy.

The ambassador, who has been in Washington since 1927, submitted his resignation shortly after he had been advised officially of the formation of a republic.

He was a close friend of King Alfonso. The ambassador said his plans were indefinite, but he probably would retire to his estate in San Sebastian, Spain.

LONDON, April 15.—(P)—A sad, weary man sat in the Spanish embassy in London today contemplating the ruins of the world which crashed around him overnight. He was the Marquis Alfonso Merry Del Val, former Spanish ambassador to England, and the doyen of the London diplomatic corps.

He was appointed to his post so many years ago that few can recall the exact date.

After hours spent on the phone to Madrid, the marquis communicated his resignation this morning.

BERLIN, April 15.—(P)—Following the example of his colleagues in Paris and London, Fernando Espinosa de los Monteros, Spanish ambassador to Germany, today telegraphed his resignation to the new republican government in Madrid. He remained in Berlin.

Exiled King Called Kind Husband and Loving Father; Intimate Glimpses of Family Life Given by Biographer

BY NENA BELMONTE DE LA
VEGA REAL

Biographer of King Alfonso.
(Copyright, 1931, for The Constitution by the North American Newspaper Alliance.)

What manner of a man is Alfonso, who has been king of Spain since he was born 44 years ago?

Let us study first the man—the man, who with his charming smile and personal attractions, has won the hearts of all those who ever had the pleasure of meeting him.

His intimate family life has always interested the public very much. Is he happy? Does he love his august wife and his children as the average married man does?

Very often people have asked me these questions and I have always had the same answer. As far as I know, and I think I can judge quite fairly since on account of my family's position I have been closely brought up with the royal family, I must say that King Alfonso is the best example of an excellent husband and a loving father.

At home or abroad we saw him showering his beautiful wife with the humble attentions by which he shows his profound love for her. Dona Victoria is an angel of goodness; everybody loves and admires her; everybody praises the majesty of her bearing and the splendid virtues of her characteristic actions. But the most fervid, the most enthusiastic of all her admirers is he with whom she shared the throne of Spain.

I remember an anecdote told me by a person that witnessed the scene—it is most charming. On the occasion of the homage that the mayors paid to the king some years ago, a mayor sheriff was received in audience by the sovereign several days after the feast. The poor sheriff was answering the king's question in a very frightened tone, when Queen Victoria arrived. Astonished by her beauty the sheriff knelt in front of the majestic woman, but immediately the king raised him, saying: "Not on bended knees; that is to be done only before God."

"And now the divine beauty of the queen," answered the sheriff. Shows Great Emotion.

Don Alfonso showed great emotion; after a few moments' silence, while helping the man to his feet, with his voice greatly moved, he answered: "You are right; you have convinced me—also before the divine beauty of the queen."

I have seen Don Alfonso playing and jesting with his children with exquisite and sincere affability, imbuing them at every moment with the most sane ideas of patriotism and watching with paternal pride what ever relates to their education and instruction.

Continuing with the study of the man, we find him the perfect gentleman of the world; elegant without affectation, with an undeniable appearance of supreme aristocracy. For women he always has the typical gallantry of the Spanish "Caballero."

I remember once at a certain reception that his majesty attended in the drawing room a lady and her escort were quietly talking. The king came in and the pair on seeing him rose to their feet. Noticing that act of courtesy, Don Alfonso, from the distance, exclaimed: "Please, I beg you. . . . Tres Charmant!"

The character of Don Alfonso, his kindness to everybody—noble or peasant—won for him the sympathies of many of his people. There is something in his smile, in his appearance that appeals to everybody. King or just simply man Don Alfonso gains the good will of peoples everywhere.

His kindness is what essentially has won friends for him. I remember two examples: One with a person of the nobility; the other with a poor woman of the populace.

That nobleman had an excellent reputation in Madrid; one day he committed an unpardonable sin. "Senor," he said to the king, "I have been an honorable man all my life. I am known as a worthy gentleman. . . . Yesterday, nevertheless, in a moment of blindness, . . . This will be the ruin of my home, the ending of my career, the dishonor of my children."

"Well," said Don Alfonso, sympathetically, "how much is it?" "Ten thousand duros, sire," he replied.

Don Alfonso did not hesitate. The 10,000 duros—the money that would save the poor man's name was handed to him.

And in a different way with that poor old woman of the populace. One of so many cases!

Two Hard-Boiled Eggs.

It happened in the north of Spain. The then king and a member of his court stopped to dine at an inn, from a window of which shone a metal rooster. The pleasant mistress of the "enchanted cottage" put aside her knitting and looked at the unexpected visitors. She was expecting no one and had had two hard-boiled eggs in the larder. They ate them and asked for more. Looking and looking, she at last found a can of foie-gras. The king ate of that too. Without daring to utter a word, and still wondering who her visitors were, she thought: "What a ravenous man is this gentleman." Their dinner over, the king and his companion left.

Some time later, Don Alfonso happened to be again in the neighborhood, but this time as a king, dressed in full uniform, escorted and acclaimed. Again the old woman stopped her knitting and peered out to see the cause for so much excitement. Don Alfonso, on seeing the metal rooster, approached the inn and addressed the old lady.

"Well, how is my dear hostess today?" The poor woman nearly collapsed, but still had strength to exclaim: "Imagine who was that ravenous gourmet!"

The king laughed and gave her some money. Since then, every time he passed by that inn he stopped to greet the old lady, who proudly awaited him with her "cousinness" and her colorful parrot.

In politics, King Alfonso has been accused of partiality and failure. I do not think these accusations are fair. If we study a little the story of the Spanish politics in the last 10 years, we will see as king, Alfonso has tried in every moment to comply with the will of his people.

When Primo De Rivera came in 1923, Spain was in a state of complete anarchy. A strong dictatorship such as that of Primo De Rivera was necessary to save the country. It was necessary then, to stop temporarily the constitutional guarantees, for before everything was the life of Spain. As King Alfonso expressed himself then publicly: "It is better to have a country without a constitution, than a constitution without a country."

Years went by and the labor of the dictatorship, though with some mistakes and failures, proved to be a success. The war with Morocco was finished; the progress in Spain was evident; the peseta went up to its true value; Spain achieved a position in the world, respected and admired by everybody.

But the dictatorship being too long, the country wished to go back to the usual government. Once more King Alfonso complied with the wishes of his people. Primo De Rivera resigned and a government was formed by Senor Berenguer, shortly afterwards followed a supposedly permanent one presided by Senor Aznar. The election was the first step towards the restoration of the old constitution.

I remember some words that Don Alfonso once said to Don Gumerindo Azcarate, one of the most illustrious leaders the Spanish republicans ever had.

"I love my country so much that if by the will of the people, Spain should become a republic, I would be the first to offer the republic my sword as a soldier."

Personally I am a monarchist and a most enthusiastic one, I don't believe in a republic; not because I don't think it is as good a form of government as a monarchy, but in Spain the people don't understand what a real and serious republic means. The populace believes that a republican government will mean wealth, liberty and the same rights for everybody.

It is said that every single Spaniard has a king in himself; in a republican Spain everybody will want to be the president. Besides, we have a most convincing reason to prove the failure that will await Spain as a republic. We have already tried a Spanish republic and with men of such talent and standing as Castelar, Salmeron, etc.

Spain has become a republic. The king goes because he will never let blood run on his account, but I feel I can say with all certainty that he will be called back, and once more will be king by the will of his people—those people that love him dearly that are not blinded by luring promises that never will be accomplished, will turn again to him.

Minister Quits.

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, April 15.—(P)—Celeo Davila, minister of finance, resigned from the cabinet today, completing the resignation of the entire ministry.

U. S. Army Officer Pictures Madrid as Monarchy Falls

The following dispatch was telephoned by an officer of the United States army who is on leave, and who happened to be in Madrid when the monarchy fell. Unable to get a cable through in the tumult which followed King Alfonso's abdication, he telephoned from his hotel.

BY CAPTAIN R. ERNEST DUPUY, U. S. A.

(Copyright, 1931, for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance.) MADRID, April 15.—(By Telephone).—Through the hurrying, sunlit hours of this momentous day the Spanish capital bubbled with excitement—from early morning on there was that sense of tremendous news about to break.

Crowds pressed their way through the streets. They massed in focal points, such as the great square known as the Puerta Del Sol and the Puerta De Alcalá, where the palace of communications lifts its two towers and white marble bulk.

The Calle De Alcalá and Calle Montero were slowly flowing streams of humanity, so jammed with thousands of men and women that rapid movement was difficult. Excitement was intense in the Barriada De Los Cuatro Caminos, a section of Madrid where a large part of the middle class working population lives.

And the throngs were dense about the royal palace, with eyes intent on every window, on every person going in and coming out. At noon, as usual, troops paraded before the palace and the royal guard was changed—for the last time.

The crowds grew greater by the hour, and by mid-afternoon the entire population of Madrid seemed to be in the streets. There was little actual disorder apparent, and I saw no violence anywhere.

Late in the afternoon found me in the square surrounding the palace of communications. People were massed there in closely packed thousands. The Spanish flag snapped from its staff above the great building, which is the nerve center of the nation. It houses the main postoffice, and there focus the radio and telegraph and telephone facilities of the country.

Suddenly, sometime after 5 o'clock, the national colors came fluttering down. A tense hush fell over the watching crowds. And then a great shout arose as a new banner took their place, a tri-colored flag of red and yellow and purple, the flag of the republic. It seemed that strip had been torn from the flag of the monarchy and in its place a band of purple attached.

Cheers swept the plaza in great waves of sound. The police and the guards joined in the cheering. Hats were hurled into the air and descended in a rain of felt. Women wave their scarfs. Shouts and cries, a hysteria of joy and enthusiasm greeted the downfall of King Alfonso and the rise of the republic.

Taxicabs which had stood in rank about the square shot off in all directions, their occupants shouting the news which that newly-flown flag had brought them. But they couldn't get far, for in a moment traffic became completely disorganized and, finally, blocked entirely. The whole city was a maelstrom of exultant jubilation.

Where the king had gone nobody at the moment knew. He was to have appeared at noon to address the American Luncheon Club, and I was there in the hope of seeing him. But he never appeared.

Nineteen American Republics, Once Spain's Provinces, Celebrate

WASHINGTON, April 15.—(AP)—As monarchial rule ended in Spain today, the 19 American republics whose territory was under Spanish domination during the height of her colonial power were celebrating jointly their independence in the first Pan-American day.

News of the abdication of King Alfonso XIII reached Washington and other American capitals while the ceremonies marking the first anniversary of organized Pan-Americanism by the 21 republics, including Portuguese-settled Brazil and English-colonized United States, were in full progress.

Representatives of the long list of western hemisphere republics which inherited their language and many of their institutions and customs from the Iberian mother country were deeply interested in the news.

United States officials recalled, also, the important part played by Spain in early conquest of North America, the settlement of Porto Rico which she now numbers among her insular possessions, and of the Philippine Islands, also under the United States.

It was from Spain that Columbus set out, discovering America October 12, 1492, and it was in the new world that Spain forged her way to importance as a colonizing power in the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. In the nineteenth century Spain watched her new world possessions fall away one by one, until in 1844 she recognized the independence of the South American republics, 19 years after English recognition.

Last days of the monarchy found Spain possessed only of Morocco in north Africa, Spanish Guinea and a few islands along the Guinean coast. These have a total estimated population of 980,000 and an area of 14,000 square miles. Spain has given France the right of preemption in case of sale of any of these African colonies or adjacent islands.

Cuba, the last stronghold of Spain's new world colonial power, was lost as recently as 1898, as a result of the Spanish-American War.

The United States gained the Philippines, Guam and Porto Rico at the same time.

Following Columbus' epic voyage, Spain waged a steady colonizing campaign in the new world. By 1512 Ponce de Leon had conquered Porto Rico.

Shortly afterward Balboa discovered the Pacific ocean. Before 1520 Magellan set out to find a route from the Atlantic to the Pacific. He was the first to circumnavigate the globe.

The conquest of Mexico by Cortes followed in 1520. By 1535 the Spanish conquest had extended to South America.

The new world territory began to change hands in the eighteenth century, while the nineteenth was disastrous to Spain's colonial ambitions. In 1801 she ceded Louisiana to France and Trinidad to England the next year. In 1816 Argentina declared independence. Chile followed suit in two years. Venezuela, Colombia and Ecuador were established in 1819 as the Republic of Colombia, divided into three departments. Bolivia was formed as a new state soon after. Mexico next rose against Spain, followed by Peru.

KING'S OWN PROPERTY WILL BE RECOGNIZED

BY JOHN DE GANPT.

(Copyright, 1931, by United Press.)
MADRID, April 15.—(By Trans-Atlantic Telephone to Buenos Aires and Cabled to New York.)—(UP)—

As I am speaking across the Atlantic this capital is living in one of the greatest moments in its history.

Alfonso XIII, a king all the 44 years of his life, has gone. The people are rejoicing and marching through the streets. A republic has been proclaimed and April 14, 1931, has become a significant date in history.

I have just obtained the gist of the farewell message which Alfonso gave Count Romanones, his foreign minister, before leaving for Cartagena. Count Romanones told me he would make it public at 8 a. m. tomorrow.

The message, a historical document, is addressed to the Spanish nation. The king says he realizes that he would be under a very serious responsibility, if he opposed the will of the nation and adds that he knows his person has become incompatible with many sections of Spanish opinion.

He wrote that he wishes only the welfare of Spain and that he believed it would be best for all if he left the country.

I understand that Alfonso's resignation comprises his own resignation and renunciation of the throne for all his descendants, while the republican government guarantees the lives of all members of the royal family.

Alfonso's private property, I am advised by a best informed source, will be respected.

Since yesterday, the people had been expecting, but hardly daring to believe, that Alfonso would relinquish his throne. Spain had been a monarchy for 981 years, and they yet cannot fully realize that the nation is now a republic.

There is a carnival atmosphere in Madrid tonight. The streets and boulevards are packed with cheering throngs waving republican flags. It is a beautiful night following a bright, clear spring day.

Some of the people waved red republican flags and pretty señoritas swung along in the crowd wearing red republican caps jauntily on their heads. Red jackets were popular. The marching, milling throng sang the "Marseillaise," French national anthem born in the French revolution. They seem to have adopted it until another republican anthem can be composed.

ARMY BEGINS TEST OF ANTI-AIRCRAFT

FORT BRAGG, N. C., April 15. (AP)—Tests of an experimental anti-aircraft gun were under way here today. One of the tests included firing at a pilotless glider, launched from the top wing of an airplane. The glider stayed aloft for half an hour before the gun demolished it.

Policeman Indicted
In New York Inquiry

NEW YORK, April 15.—(AP)—James J. Quinlivan, former vice squad patrolman, was indicted by the federal grand jury today for an attempt to defraud the government by concealment of income and also for failure to file income tax returns.

The indictment is the first of its nature among members of the vice squad whose incomes were revealed at the inquiry into magistrates' courts to have been large.

United States Attorney Medalle said Quinlivan's gross provable income for 1927, 1928 and 1929 was $44,000.

OX ANTI-TRUST CASE TERMINATED BY JUDGE

Defendants Will Transfer Holdings to New Delaware Corporation.

NEW YORK, April 15.—(AP)—A decree terminating an anti-trust proceeding instituted by the government against the Fox Film Corporation in 1928 was signed today by federal Judge John C. Knox.

The decree ordered the defendants to divest themselves of their stock ownership in Fox Film Corporation, Metro-Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, and Fox Film Corporation, which was held in violation of the Clayton anti-trust act. The defendants, who will transfer their holdings to a Delaware corporation recently organized for that purpose, consented to the decree.

The court approved a plan under which the 600,000 shares of common stock of Fox Film, Inc., will be transferred to the newly organized Fox Film Corporation. The Fox films are to receive a large block of stock in the new corporation.

The decree was consented to by Ralph S. Harris, representing the defendant corporations, and George Z. Medalie, United States district attorney; John Lord O'Brien, assistant attorney-general, and John Harlan Amen, assistant to the attorney-general of the United States.

Straw Hats Get Official Sanction Today

Straw hat season will be ushered in officially today, a sure sign that spring is here to stay, and men's out-fitters are prominently featuring the new straw hats and panamas in their advertising and window displays.

Occasional glimpses of straws on the street for the past few weeks have attracted some few stares, but the increasing number of them more recently might be taken as an indication that the official opening of the season will find straws the rule rather than the exception.

The styles this year will lean toward panamas and the sennit or stiff straws, according to those familiar with the styles; panamas to be worn for sport and during leisure hours, and the sennits will be for business wear.

Bands on all of the hats are said to be very modest, many of them being black, and those that have colors emphasize a conservative note.

Officers could not identify Sudan as the driver, but his ownership of the car was established, according to police, and he was bound over on the liquor charge. CHICAGO 'LOVE MART' CHARGED BY POLICE

CHICAGO, April 15.—(AP)—Two women were held today by investigators at the racket bureau of the state's attorneys' office as the alleged heads of a "love mart" which procured young "party girls" for wealthy and influential men.

The arrests followed a raid upon a north side apartment in which a book containing more than 200 names of patrons and girls was found. Most of these Sergeant Michael Ahern, who conducted the raid said, would be questioned.

The women held identified themselves as Baroness Katherine Kuhlwindt, 50, who claims her title is genuine, and Mrs. Jane Stanton, 43. The baroness, Ahern said, had been operating the "love agency" from her apartment for the last six years. Mrs. Stanton said she had been aiding the baroness for only two weeks.

Several weeks' secret investigation preceded the arrests, Ahern said. Investigators, posing as wealthy visitors to Chicago, made contact with the baroness and obtained one young woman with whom they "threw a party" in one of the city's most exclusive hotels, the sergeant declared.

The names of the alleged patrons and girls were kept in two books.

Ahern said. In the section devoted to girls were notations such as "Dorothy, blonde, 19," and her telephone number.

Authorities said they believed several men were partners of the baroness.

to take up their residence abroad. Some of the staunchest anti-republicanists reported when arrested. Others were being clothed and servants dismissed.

Conversely, hundreds of political exiles were returning to help establish the republic. Some had been banished or fled. Among these was Captain Ramon Franco, Spain's leading aviator, who received an uproarious welcome when he arrived in Barcelona. Later, he returned the compliment with an exhibition of stunt flying above the city.

Thousands of political prisoners were freed when jails swung open throughout the nation in response to the government's declaration of amnesty. The army was ordered not to liberate and communists in several cities staged disturbances in their behalf.

On the order for the arrest of former Premier Damasco Berenguer was reported to have been drawn but he was said to have left the country. General Berenguer, who had fled to Madrid, was arrested in Aranjuez as he was attempting to leave the country. He was judged by republicans to be the chief instigator during the recent riots among students.

Pictures of Captain Galan and Garcia Hernandez, executed after the Cuba revolt, were carried in many parades and they were paid homage as martyrs to the republic and national heroes.

At the most part, however, the street processions struck a note of gaiety. Helmetless policemen rode on trucks wearing republican colors and waving red flags, while their civilian friends donned police equipment. The police force apparently went over en masse to the republican movement inasmuch as it has done nothing since yesterday but celebrate with the

POLE RENDEZVOUS PLANNED BY GRAF

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, April 15.—(AP)—A possible rendezvous in the polar regions between the Graf Zeppelin and Sir Hubert Wilkins' submarine Nautilus was forecast to the Associated Press today by Dr. Hugo Eckener.

"It is quite possible that a flight into the arctic regions may eventuate this year," said the commander of the dirigible. "It all depends on whether we can finance the proposed expedition. If so I expect to personally command the Graf. In New York Wilkins and I agreed to try to meet in the polar wastes."

If the polar flight fails to materialize, Dr. Eckener intimated, he would accept an invitation from Holland to study aviation conditions in Java, embarking for the orient in June or July.

DETECTIVE GETS TERM IN JACKSON SWINDLE

MOBILE, Ala., April 15.—(AP)—Norman C. Boles, former private detective associated in Mobile with Paul G. Cazalas, already under sentence in the federal prison in connection with the Laurel (Miss.) bank embezzlement of $72,000 last August, entered a plea of guilty in federal court this morning to a charge of being an accessory after the fact and was given six months in the Baldwin jail.

Boles was one of three persons scheduled to be tried today following their indictment on charges of being accessories after the fact in the embezzlement. Frank Venturini, former Mobile policeman, and Dr. C. E. Chapman, Mobile druggist and doctor, were scheduled to face trial but announcement was made that they were confined to a hospital by illness. Both cases were taken off the docket until April 27.

Federal authorities made public the fact that Chapman, who the government alleges was the recipient of $10,000 of the money taken in the embezzlement, will be used as a witness against Venturini.

H. Edward Jackson, teller of the Laurel bank; his father, John H. Jackson; Roy Schaefer, Cazalas and others already have been sentenced in the case.

TREATED RHEUMATISM FOR YEARS

Long experience in treating various kinds of rheumatic troubles enabled a well-known doctor to originate Prescription C-2223. In his private practice, this doctor met with much success in bringing relief to thousands suffering from rheumatism, gout, sciatica and neuralgia, and now his same original prescription (C-2223), which proved so effective, is available to all who are finding life a burden because of the aches and pains of rheumatic troubles. Prescription

C-2223 neutralizes toxic acids in the joints and rids the system of poisonous waste matter. In many cases it has brought marked improvement where other so-called "remedies" have failed. Prescription C-2223, because it is a doctor's prescription, is based upon definite scientific knowledge and long years of actual experience. All prescription drug stores now have on hand regular size bottles of Prescription C-2223 and will sell it to you on an absolute money-back guarantee.

TAX INEQUALITIES SCORED BY MAYOR

Atlanta Troubles Based on Apportioning of State Levies, Key Says.

Solution of Atlanta's financial problems lies principally in correction of discrimination against the city in apportioning state taxes and appropriations, Mayor James L. Key said in his weekly gathering Wednesday.

"The city is 'broke' and will always be 'broke' until something is done about the situation which causes such inequality of revenue income and expenditure throughout the state," the mayor asserted.

"With Fulton county paying one-fourth of the state taxes and 50 percent of those coming from Atlanta, we find the anomalous situation of not one cent of this money being expended for paving of city streets or for other city needs," he said.

In the other hand, the city is forced to pay gasoline taxes to the state for operating its own automobiles over city streets toward which the state makes no contribution for construction or upkeep. This is just by way of illustration of the inequality in justice that is incorporated in the present system."

As another instance of what he termed one of the fundamental factors keeping the municipal government in financial straits, the mayor cited the special "county teachers' salaries" and for which Atlanta was forced to pay annually more than $300,000 in spite of the fact that the city has not sufficient funds to pay its own teachers, and in face of unpaid quota for 1929 and 1930 of the state education fund due the city from state monies."

"As another instance we find 25 percent of the patients at the city-supported Grady hospital and Battle Hill sanatorium are out-of-town, or, in other words, costing the city more than $200,000 annually, although the county pays only $20,000 annually for this."

"With such inequality, is there any wonder that the city is 'busted'?" the mayor questioned, adding "And we will always be 'busted' until something is done about it."

"In spite of the fact that there always exists prejudice in legislatures against large cities, I believe that our assembly is fair-minded enough to correct this condition if it were properly presented to it. The trouble in Atlanta has never had worth-while representation in the legislature and that we are going to get it even worse than what we had. The people of Atlanta will have to be aroused to the importance of this issue before any improvement can be hoped for."

The mayor was introduced by B. C. Boyles and Lionel Keene, who presided. Herbert Porter responded for the Masonic club at the close of the mayor's talk.

SMALL METEOR FALLS ON NEBRASKA FARM

HERMAN, Neb., April 15.—(AP)—A small meteor fell into a pasture near here today and burned for two hours, flames at times leaping 40 feet in the air. Farmers who dug it out later found the largest piece to be about 4 inches long, 4 inches thick and 10 pounds in weight.

Atlanta 'Quake' Refugees Return

Of all the arrivals in the city Wednesday, it is doubtful if any three were so happy to be here as those pictured above—Mrs. A. P. Greer, 632 Atwood street, S. W., and her two young sons, Alfred Pickens, "going on four," and Frank Colquitt, aged ten months. Caught in Managua, where Mr. Greer is a lieutenant in the marine corps, by the recent earthquake, Mrs. Greer and her children, who escaped injury, were rushed by plane to Corinto where they sailed to Norfolk, in company with 450 other refugees, on the U. S. S. Chaumont. Staff photo by George Cornett.

ATLANTA REFUGEE TELLS OF MANAGUA

two minutes, was over," said Mrs. Greer.

"The nurse grabbed Alfred, and I snatched up the baby from his crib at the first alarm," she continued, "and we made our way to the patio, and thence to a vacant lot in front of the house, where many other people had assembled. There my husband found us, and we were taken to the marine barracks, a recently constructed building which had stood up. If the quake had occurred at night instead of in the morning, there is no doubt but that the number of dead and injured would have been greatly increased."

"The entire marine force in Nicaragua immediately turned to bringing in the dead and injured to the Marine and Guardia hospitals in camp, and such a pathetic sight I have never seen. However, the amputations and other operations were quickly effected, and by midnight practically all major cases were disposed of and even the slighter injuries attended to. The natives, many of the poorer of whom lived in wretchedly built huts and slept five and six in a room, certainly suffered severely, but what the situation would have been without the marines and the Red Cross to take charge of the situation and administer medical aid is too horrible even to contemplate."

Many of the wives and daughters of the marines acted as emergency nurses in the hospitals. Mrs. Greer stated, and gave valuable aid.

"Sleep" on Lawn.

"We were not allowed in the town, of course," she went on, "but confined strictly to the barracks for the following three days, sleeping at night on blankets spread on the lawn. I say 'sleeping' but I doubt if any of us really slept. I know I didn't. It was a curious thing that, although the days were quiet, every one of those nights brought another series of earth tremors. There were all slight, but of course, they were enough to make the next one would end to us. The natives were simply craned with fear and running wild in every direction."

Many of the Nicaraguans were buried in the ruins of the municipal market, which was entirely demolished. Mrs. Greer stated, and 200 prisoners confined in the near-by penitentiary met death when the old building collapsed.

Rushed by plane to the port of Corinto on the morning of April 4, Mrs. Greer and her children, in company with 150 other refugees, took passage on the U. S. S. Chaumont for Norfolk that afternoon, reaching the Virginia city Tuesday.

CHURCH SPEAKERS DISCUSS BUSINESS

tribution of the church to human life in promoting democracy, the worth of the individual and charity. No hospitals would have existed without the church, he said, and went on to point out the historical position of the church in supporting the right of laborers to enjoy the fruit of their toil.

Two phases of Pope Leo XIII's famous encyclical on "The Conditions of Labor" were stressed by the speaker, that dealing with "man's God-given right to raise a family and support it from his toil," and "the correlative duty of observing God's laws in raising that family." In the latter connection, Father Kenny took his stand firmly with the fundamental position of the Catholic church against birth control. He warmly commended Bishop Candler's stand in opposition to the dictum of the federal council favoring birth control measures, and stated that the council would have done well to advocate, instead, a more equitable distribution of wealth. Figures show that 96 percent of this country's wealth is concentrated in the hands of 20 percent of its people, he declared.

"We have no real experience of God unless we put into practice the ethical ideas of which we know," stated Dr. Ward in the concluding address of the session. "If religion's progress to date has not been satisfactory, this is due not to any conflict between science and religion, but to our failure to live up to our moral ideals. In the economic order, we are working from a profit motive, every man theoretically seeking his own advantage, whereas in religion, art and science man is in pursuit of some ideal. The two are running at cross currents, and thus we have a basic division at the very heart of our civilization."

Unless economic forces can be brought into harmony with the ideals acknowledged in religion, art and science, our western civilization cannot escape tearing itself asunder, Dr. Ward declared.

Approximately 300 leaders in Protestant, Catholic and Jewish thought are attending the convention which is regarded as being specially timely and significant this year in view of the principal theme selected for discussion: "Religious Issues in Our Economic Crisis."

A frank facing of industrialism and its meaning to American civilization has been determined upon by those in charge of the program, and the necessity for a reevaluation of the spiritual factors of modern life will form the topic of numerous addresses.

Three sessions are scheduled for today and the same number for Friday, when the convention will come to a close at the evening session. This morning's session, which convenes at 9:30 o'clock, will include separate

JURY MAY PROBE 'BILL TAMPERING'

Motor Bus Measure Said To Be Under Scrutiny of Solicitor Boykin.

Rumors that the recent extra session of the Georgia legislature may reverberate in the carefully guarded room of the Fulton county grand jury were heard Wednesday at the courthouse.

Reports were that Solicitor-General John A. Boykin is preparing to go into certain features of the new motor bus regulatory bill known as "Senate Bill No. 5," on the ground that the act was tampered with.

Solicitor-General Boykin Wednesday declined to comment on the matter. It is understood, however, that a copy of the act and information relating to alleged tampering is in his possession and probably will be submitted to the grand jury at an early session. The grand jury some months ago went into an investigation of an act passed at the 1929 session of the legislature, but found that the charges dwindled down to mere clerical error in the engrossing of the bill.

PIONEER SUFFRAGE WORKERS HONORED

WASHINGTON, April 15.—(AP)—A bronze plaque listing the names of 72 pioneer workers for woman suffrage was unveiled today at a council meeting of the League of Women Voters.

It resulted from a nationwide tenth anniversary celebration of the nineteenth amendment, which gave women the right to vote. Each state selected representatives for the honor roll of the suffrage leaders.

to come closer than the rest. They doffed their hats. "Adios," they cried, bowing respectfully toward the tear-stained face in the car window.

A path was cleared across the platform and the queen emerged, followed by Princess Cristina and Princess Beatrice, her daughters, and two of her sons, Jaime and Gonzalo. Alfonso, prince of Asturias and heir to the throne, was carried from the car on a stretcher. He has long been an invalid.

Cheers followed the train as it pulled out of the station. The first stop was Bayonne where the queen was to be greeted by her loyal friends among the Basques. Flowers were awaiting here and there and if she were to take them all aboard the train would be a veritable garden.

The Basque country has tender associations for the queen. It was at Biarritz where Alfonso courted her and every year since their marriage she has toured the region, by automobile. She knows its every corner and many of the inhabitants are her friends.

The journey from Hendaye to Paris takes nearly twelve hours and the queen was not expected at the French capital until tomorrow morning.

ZAMORA HOPEFUL ON SPAIN'S FUTURE

the people gave ample proof. Everywhere the people were overflowing with enthusiasm, but without causing the least disturbance. Manifestations of popular joy were the order of the day, with stores, clubs and cafes open, and without even the shattering of a window pane.

I do not believe history offers us another example which would show so eloquently the seriousness, civility and political maturity of a people. The change of regime took place under astonishingly orderly conditions and through channels thoroughly legal. Normalcy in the country is complete and foreign powers may have full confidence in the future development of the republic.

Monarchy Target.

The monarchy, weak, dilapidated and with no prestige, was the target for the overwhelming majority of the Spaniards, for to them it had come to be synonymous with disorder. It could be upheld only through violence. On the other hand the republic, respected by all, signifies tranquility, order, peace, work and general well-being.

The republic will not find obstacles in its path, for the army, the civil guard and the police, with discipline and patriotism, have lent it enthusiastic support from the outset.

Taking into consideration the facts that the immense majority of the people are sincerely enthusiastic for the republic, that another large faction sympathizes with a republican regime, that only a small minority remain monarchial, and that all armed forces joined the new regime, we feel assured when we declare that we inaugurate under happy auspices the second Spanish republic.

As we are finding no resistance, we can maintain order without resort to violence, and we can establish a democratic republic. We can also enact

Rain May Mar Opening Game, Forecast Says

Possibility of rain today was forecast late Wednesday by C. F. von Herrmann, official prophet at the United States weather bureau station. Mr. von Herrmann reluctantly admitted that the opening ball game might be broken up by a drizzle. The temperature will range between 55 and 76.

just social reforms and create a system that will be fair to all.

The provisional republican government over which I have the honor to preside will convolve shortly a cortes constituyente (constitutional convention), a cortes that will be the supreme and direct organ of expression of the national will. The republic will respect fully individual conscience and freedom of beliefs and religion. The republic will widen the rights of the citizens, acknowledging the existence of syndical and corporate institutions which will form the basis of the new social order. The republic will guarantee rights to private property which may have been confiscated or appropriated through previous nationalization.

I can assure you that the Spanish republic deserves the good will and confidence of the rest of the world. It brings to the family of nations a people free, civilized, industrious, peaceful and prosperous.

Editor's Note.—It will be noted above that President Zamora refers to the "abdication" of King Alfonso, whereas the manifesto by the king distinctly states that he is renouncing none of his royal prerogatives. It is probable that Madrid is still uncertain about the exact wording of the manifesto, hence the confusion in

SECRET PLACES

BY JOAN SUTHERLAND

INSTALLMENT XXII.

"Why, Toni," she said quickly, "of course I will forget it all, and—I was a fool, too. I admit that. I don't owe money now except to D'Arblay, and it isn't a great amount. It is good of you to say what you will do, but I don't think I'll have to bother you in that way. D'Arblay is leaving the Rochegards tomorrow morning. We're all fools sometimes, I suppose. You're lucky. You're married to the man you're in love with."

Toni gave Greta's hands a little warm squeeze, then went out of the room, and closing the door behind her, stood for a second in the hall, perfectly still, aware that a tremendous burden had been lifted from her spirit. She could enjoy the rest of the stay now—the last week—which would be beautifully free from the incubus, D'Arblay.

In the room she had left Greta slipped the bolt and stood perfectly still, leaning back against the door—her mouth tense, her eyes hard—while the resentment she had felt against her sister ever since the betrothal to Staire had been announced, mounted to a hard, unyielding anger. Toni had forgotten the best of the engagement, and she herself had been forced into a position of surrender. For that alone she would never forgive her. Going slowly across to her dressing table she unlocked a drawer, took from it a little case, and from the case a small sheet of bills—25,000 francs; not a great deal of money, but all owed for some months, money for which she was being pressed, money that only D'Arblay could supply.

Rather white-lipped, she shut up the case again, thrust it away, unfastened the door and went out of the room down to dinner.

The evening of the day Toni and her mother returned to Paris they dined out with Feodor and some friends of his, and altogether life presented a very rosy face to Toni. She was kept busy shopping with her mother the next morning, lunched with some people, and afterwards was meeting a friend of her own at Sirdar's for tea. She reached the tea shop just five minutes before the hour, and stood for a moment at the window looking at the lovely yellow pottery, in which the shop specialized.

"I'll have that for my coffee in the morning," she said to herself, studying a big chocolate pot of deep yellow, painted with flowers. Then she went inside the shop and glanced among the crowd of her friends, Madeline Vincent. As usual, that young person was late.

Toni told a waitress to keep a small table, and strolling to the counter, surveyed the cakes, and the sandwiches in their oiled paper wrappers. Just as she had decided what she would choose and was asking for a plate, a tall man came into the shop with a young girl, and Toni was aware that in some way this girl was different from those others about her. She was dressed all in black, but her face, which was very pale, was made remarkable by a pair of glorious tawny eyes, and by the bright red hair that curled forward like a question mark upon her cheek. Then the man turned round, and she saw it was Paul Ravel. He bowed in answer to Toni's smile, here made no effort to come and speak to her, and Toni suddenly realized who was with him—no other than the model from whom he had painted her famous picture of last year that had made such a sensation at the salon. Well, she was attractive enough anyhow, and Toni wished she could go and talk to her, but it was quite obvious that he did not wish her to do so.

As luck would have it, when she and Madeline had drunk excellent China tea, eaten the most delicious sandwiches and generally enjoyed themselves, Ravel had also just got up to go, and the two girls in making their exit through the swing door, came in contact rather roughly with the young red-haired model. It was Toni who swung round in swift apology.

"I'm so sorry," she said, speaking her pure fluent French. "This door stuck and then knocked me backwards against it."

Her smile, the quick friendliness in her eyes, attracted Gigi, who was not disposed to be too friendly toward the girls on this side of the river. Indeed, her comments on the sheltered jeunes filles were apt to be rather picturesque and unprintable. Now, however, she answered Toni's smile by one just as friendly, and shrugged her shoulders.

"Oh, it didn't hurt me," she said. "They are stiff, these doors, and I have not been here before. It's rather amusing."

Toni nodded.

"Yes, I don't come very often either. I think it's great fun, but I would eat too much and get fat if I came here often."

The other laughed.

"I mustn't get fat," she said. Then a sudden dare-devilry sparkled in her brown eyes. "You see, I pose for the altogether."

"Do you?" Toni's eyebrows went up in interested delight. "How thrilling! I've often wondered if one really felt shy or didn't. I wish—oh, here's monsieur Ravel!"

"You know Paul Ravel?" the stranger said, and Toni laughed.

"Very well, indeed. He's going to paint me sometime. I don't know how he'll like it. He's painted you often enough. I knew you sat for him, because I saw your picture in the Salon last year. It was lovely. Hello, monsieur Ravel! I've just been talking to Mademoiselle Gigi."

"This is Mademoiselle Gigi Berton," he said. "Gigi, this is Mademoiselle Antonia Wareham."

Gigi nodded.

"I know," she said. "I've seen her photograph. She is going to marry Staire."

In spite of herself, Toni started a little. So this girl knew Feodor. It was surprising to hear his name so calmly used. Ravel, however, interposed quietly.

"Yes, mademoiselle is to marry Monsieur Staire," he said; and turning to Toni he added casually: "Feodor used to come and watch me painting sometimes last year. My work always attracted him. I suppose it is because it is so different from his own."

Toni smiled.

"I'd love to watch you some day myself," she said. "And some day particularly, when Mademoiselle Gigi—"

"she half turned to the other, 'is posing—that is, if I might be permitted?'"

Ravel made some careless rejoinder, and a few minutes later, when he was walking down the Champs Elysees with Gigi, the latter spoke after a lengthy silence.

"She is different—" she said abruptly—"quite different from all the ladies you know, Ravel. I like her. She is what you call sincere. Yes, I like her. I am glad she will marry Monsieur Staire. He will take care of her. They will be happy."

And so Toni, all unwittingly, made a friend—a friend who was to prove her use, and come to her aid in a crisis, as yet undreamed of.

Paris was full to the last crowded room. The automobile show started on the morrow, and neither money nor influence could obtain one more bed in one more room in one more hotel or pension.

Feodor took Toni to the show and Toni in the latest possible garments of pale gray and squirrel looked exquisite. It was one of the things she had intended to keep for her trousseau, but the sudden spell of cold and the knowledge of the very attractive she would look even in that crowd of smart women was too much for her, and she donned the dress, and was suitably rewarded by Feodor's admiration. Then he had to put her into the car and himself leave for the embassy.

"Come in a minute, Toni, dear," Lady Alice called when she reached home. "Monsieur Ravel is here. He has been trying to persuade me to let him sketch you these next two or three days, but I tell him that it is an absolute impossibility."

Of cordial interest to members of Atlanta society is the arrival this morning from Florida of Mrs. Howard Bucknell and her daughter, Mrs. Dixon Bayard Potter, who will be the guests for a week of Mrs. William H. They will be accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Potter's lovely young children, Sue Potter and Clifford Potter II. Dr. Bucknell ranks as a leader in the medical profession, and during their residence here he and Mrs. Bucknell were popular and prominent figures in the social and cultural life. Mrs. Potter, the former Miss Sue Bucknell, was one of the most admired belles ever to make a debut in Atlanta and her beauty and charm have won fame not only in this country, but in the cultural centers of Europe, where she is often a popular figure.

Mr. and Mrs. Potter and their children have spent the past months at their winter home at Clearwater, Fla. Dr. and Mrs. Bucknell, who maintain a winter home in Panama City as the guests of their son and daughter, Howard Bucknell, Jr., American consul to Panama, and Mrs. Bucknell. Mrs. Matthews and her sister, Mrs. DeLos Blodgett, who were the former Misses Myrtice and Daisy Peck, of Atlanta, are famous hostesses of the national capital, and they take a prominent part in the social and club life of the city. Mrs. Matthews is en route from a season spent at her winter home in Florida. She was a popular figure attending the state convention of Colonial Dames held recently in Savannah, and she visited Magnolia Garden at Charleston before coming to Atlanta. She will leave for Washington Sunday, accompanied by Mrs. Wynn, who will be her guest.

Mrs. Wynn also has her guest in the Terrace Mrs. William E. Adams, of Madison, Ga., who is being cordially welcomed by a wide circle of friends. Mrs. Adams was before her marriage Miss Pauline Pugh, a belle and beauty of Atlanta.

Miss Webb Feted

A charming visitor in whom younger members of society take a cordial interest is Miss Margaret Webb, of Bowling Green, Va., who has returned to her former home as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. Rivers at their home on Roxboro road. Miss Webb is the granddaughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. G. G. Roy, distinguished pioneer citizens of Atlanta. Following her visit to Mr. and Mrs. Rivers, she will be the guest of her uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. Dunbar Roy, at the Georgian Terrace.

Quiet Afternoon Ceremony at Bride's Home Unites Miss Martha Lewis and Wilson Kemp

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Kemp, as seen at their wedding, solemnized at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride in Druid Hills. Mrs. Kemp was before her marriage Miss Martha Lewis, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Coley J. Lewis. Photograph by Kenneth Rogers, staff photographer.

Mr. and Mrs. Coley John Lewis announce the marriage of their daughter, Martha, to Wilson Kemp, the ceremony having been quietly solemnized at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon at their home at 858 Springdale road, in Druid Hills.

The marriage service, which was witnessed only by members of the immediate families of the bride and the bridegroom, was read by Dr. Raymond R. Pate, of Emory University, close friend of the bride's family.

Dignity and simplicity characterized the nuptial vows, which were taken before the fireplace in the drawing room of the handsome home. The floral decorations, featuring a color motif of green and white, introduced a variety of early garden flowers, including lilies, spirea, iris and calla lilies in charming arrangement.

The lovely young bride was unattended. She was given in marriage by her father, Coley John Lewis, and Mr. Kemp had as his best man Charles King.

Embroidered mouseline de soire, posed over a slip of chiffon and fashioned in picturesque, bouffant mode, formed the bride's gown, its shell pink tones blending in exquisite effect with her dainty Watteau beauty. The embroidery, introducing pale pink and French blue shades, formed a hand at the neckline of the long, full skirt, which, combined with the close-fitting, sleeveless bodice, was especially becoming to her slender, graceful beauty. Girdled in French blue ribbon, the waistline was finished with a bow at the side front; the long ends of ribbon extending to the hemline. Worn with the lovely gown were slippers dyed to match, and a diaphanous hat of pale pink tulle, the soft brim turned sharply off the face, and fashioned with no trimming. A graceful arm bouquet of pink, radiance roses tied with soft blue ribbons completed the bridal ensemble.

Mr. and Mrs. Kemp left for a wedding journey by motor, and upon their return will reside in Atlanta.

Prominent Families.
Mrs. Kemp is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis, who are among the city's most prominent citizens, her father being a leading financier of the state. Mr. Lewis is a native of Albany, Ga., and following his marriage to the former Miss Anne Coulton, of Americans, a charming representative of southern aristocracy and one of the state's most popular belles, he made his home in Montezuma.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis and their daughter came to Atlanta for residence about 15 years ago, and in that time have become identified in all phases of its cultural and social life.

The bride received her early education at Washington Seminary, where she was a member of the Pi Pi Club. She completed her education at the fashionable Mount Vernon Seminary, in Washington, D. C., and has enjoyed the cultural advantages of wide travel. Though she was never formally presented to society, she has been an acknowledged belle of the younger set and has been an admired and sought-after figure in whatever circle she chose to move. She is a member of the Girls' Cottillon Club, and possesses a wide circle of friends throughout the state, won by her individuality and charm of manner, who will be interested in her marriage.

The bridegroom is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Kemp, of Springdale road, who hold a place of distinction among Atlanta's well-known citizens. His sisters are Mrs. Dan Many and Miss Mary Elinor Kemp. The bridegroom's mother was, before her marriage, Miss Mary Cottingham, a member of a prominent Talbotton, Ga., family. His father was born and reared in Albany and since coming to Atlanta to reside has taken an active part in the business life of the city.

As a graduate from Boys' High school he pursued his studies at the University of Georgia, where he was awarded a bachelor of arts degree in 1929. He is stationed at Fort Benning, where he is connected in business with the American Security Company.

MISS Mary B. Murray's NEW BOOK on

SALAD DRESSINGS TO SUIT THE SALADS

"THERE is a right kind of salad for each occasion, and a right kind of dressing for each different kind of salad."

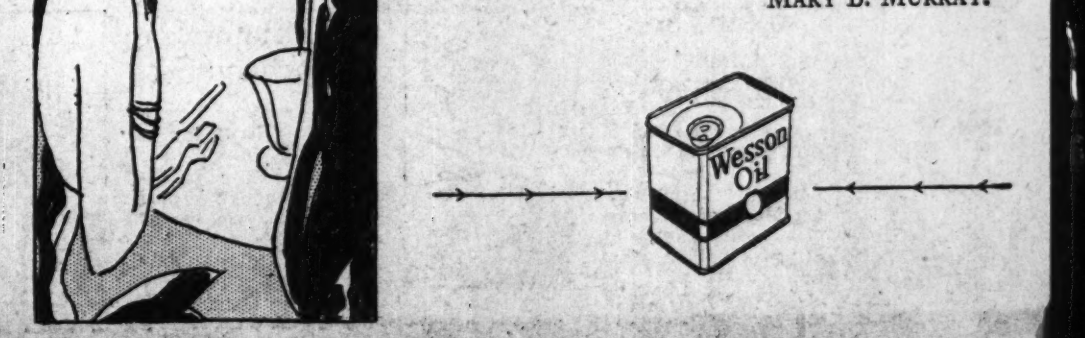

That is nothing new! It is simply that some things go together and some do not. It is as old as flowers in spring, overcoats in winter, going to bed at night and getting up in the morning.

So mix a dressing appropriate to the salad. For the right dressing, mixed to suit the particular flavors of the salad, really decides the success of the salad.

Each different kind of salad has a different flavor. That is why we like them. Then why smother all their flavors under a blanket of thick dressing like mayonnaise? Mix a dressing appropriate to the salad.

In my little booklet I suggest a few salads appropriate for each occasion and the dressings that go best with them. I feel sure you will enjoy it because I have written it just for you. I hope it will help you make all your dinners and parties the charming successful occasions you want them to be. I will send you the booklet with my compliments if you will write me in care of the Westons Oil People, 210 Baronne St., New Orleans, La.

TALKING IT OVER BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Confidence, Like Charity, Must Begin at Home —Could Any Woman in Her Right Mind Give Up a Good Husband for the Fleeting “Pleasure” of Alcohol?

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

I am a girl of 18 and a very unhappy one. About a year ago I went to party with a friend of mine whom I have known for two years. Like many of the young people do, we left the party and went for a ride, returning about 11:30. We were not drinking and we did nothing wrong, but the gossip about us was so terrible that my parents restricted me and forbade me to see my friend again. Everything I do is discussed by the neighborhood. The girls whom I had thought my friends quit coming to see me and you can imagine what it means to lose your girl friends. The boy has stuck to me through thick and thin and I count him the only friend I have. Tell me how to win my friends back and how to restore myself to the confidence of my own parents. —STUNG.

ANSWER:

Either you have very unfair parents and friends or you have misrepresented the facts in this unfortunate affair. In either case, you want to be reinstated in the good will and confidence of both and that ambition does you credit. If you are an obedient, respectful daughter to your parents, and do not deceive them, rest assured they will be the first to recognize it. If you are guilty of deception and are undutiful they will instinctively know it.

When you have won your parents it will be time enough to make plans for the outsiders. So long as your own parents do not trust your integrity, there is not a chance of convincing outsiders that you are what you claim or yourself.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

I am a young married woman who likes a drink and whose husband doesn't like it. I never go to extremes but when I am worried it is the only consolation I can get. It makes him very angry and he talks about leaving me. Should I give up this pleasure to please him? He is a very good husband to me. —ALICE.

ANSWER:

You have no alternative but to give up a habit that is unbecoming to a woman, and for which your husband has already threatened to quit. It is possible that you may not "go to extremes" now but it is only a matter of time until you do. The alcohol habit works the same way with man and woman and I am told that the most dangerous type of drinking is the drinking to forget. As time goes on and cares and worries of life increase, so must the quantity of alcohol proportionately be increased.

If you have already gone on to the point where you cannot give up the habit without help, your husband will, no doubt, be willing to send you to some institution where you may be cured. —CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Miss Taylor and Mr. Peeples Wed At Brilliant Ceremony in Macon

MACON, Ga., April 15.—Centering the interest of the fashionable society throughout the state was the marriage of Miss Mary Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jenks Taylor, to Benjamin Franklin Peeples, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin P. Peeples, both of Macon, which was brilliantly solemnized this evening at 9 o'clock at the Vineville Methodist church.

A wedding reception immediately followed the ceremony at the handsome home of the bride's parents on Vineville avenue.

The wedding ceremony was performed by Dr. Edmund F. Cook, pastor of the church in the presence of a representative assemblage of southern society.

The interior of the beautiful church was decorated for the occasion with quantities of palms, southern smilax and Easter lilies, a color motif of green and white prevailing. The entire front of the church was banked with palms and standing in relief against this green background were flower baskets filled with Easter lilies and candles, candelabra holding burning white tapers. Centering the choir loft was an oblong basket filled with Easter lilies and marking the pews for the families were large clusters of these blossoms.

As the guests assembled, a program of appropriate music was given. Mrs. Ray Carter, cousin of the bride, sang "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," and "I Love You Truly." "Dresses" and "The Marriage Mass" were rendered before the ceremony, and for the entrance of the bride party the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin" was used with Mendelssohn's wedding march as the recessional.

Bridal Party Enters. Entering first were the ushers and groomsmen, Robert Taylor, Jr., of Atlanta, and Marshall Taylor, of Macon, brothers of the bride; Frank Troutman, of Atlanta; George Harrison Henry, of Macon; Roland Ellis, Jr., of Macon; and Dr. Truman Slade, of Macon.

The bridesmaids entered in pairs down the aisle of the church. They were Mrs. Holly Howell, of Florida, a sister of the bride; Miss Harriet Adams, Mrs. George Harrison Henry, of Macon; Mrs. Frank Troutman, of Atlanta; Mrs. A. L. Lippitt, of New York, and Miss Alice Lee, of Richmond, Va. The matron of honor, Mrs. W. P. Stevens, sister of the bride, entered alone, down the center aisle.

The bride's attendants were gowned in embroidered mouseline de soie, the bridesmaids' frocks being of shell pink and the matron-of-honor's blue. The gowns, fashioned alike, were made with close-fitting bodices, the natural waistlines marked by sashes of pastel shaded ribbons. The full skirts were floor length and the sashes were fitted with tiny bouquets of flowers. The bridesmaids wore blue slippers and carried arm bouquets of pink roses and snapdragons. The matron-of-honor's slippers were of pink and she carried an arm bouquet of pink roses and snapdragons. The bridesmaids' bouquets were of pink roses and snapdragons. The bridesmaids' bouquets were of pink roses and snapdragons.

Beautiful Bride. The bride, entered with her father, Robert Jenks Taylor, and they were met at the altar by the bridegroom and his best man, Henry Peeples, his brother.

The bride, an exquisite titian blonde, was unusually beautiful in her wedding gown, a Lanvin model of bridal fines, sat in. Fashioned on Grecian lines, the graceful, long skirt formed a train in the back. The new square neckline was featured and the long tight sleeves, flared at the wrists. Her veil, of bridal flesh tulle, was bordered with a three-inch band of Chantilly lace, and it formed a becoming Madonna cap, finished at the sides with tiny clusters of orange blossoms. Her slippers matched her gown and she carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley.

Immediately after the ceremony, the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jenks Taylor, entertained at a reception at their residence on Vineville avenue. Receiving with the hosts and bride and bridegroom were the B. P. Peeples.

Mrs. Taylor wore a handsome gown of powder blue lace with a corsage bouquet of pink roses and lilies of the valley. Of black lace was the gown worn by Mrs. Peeples, mother of the bridegroom, and her flowers were a corsage of roses and valley lilies. Mrs. Robert Cornwall, of Lakeland, Fla., a sister of the bridegroom, wore a gown of flowered moire.

Of flowered taffeta trimmed in pink was the gown worn by Mrs. Marshall Taylor, Jr. Mrs. Robert Taylor, Jr., of Atlanta, chose for the occasion a beaming gown of blue lace, worn with a shoulder spray of orchids. Mrs. Ray Carter's gown was of powder blue chiffon, the skirt formed of chiffon and lace combined. Marking the natural waistline was a sash of ribbon of a deeper shade of blue. Her slippers were dyed to match her gown, and she wore a corsage bouquet of roses and valley lilies.

Home Decorations. Throughout the entire lower floor of the Taylor home quantities of colorful spring flowers in pastel shades were arranged in charming effect. The color motif for the wedding, pink, predominated in the dining room. The bride's table, overlaid with a hand-some cloth of lace, was centered with a plateau of pink roses, snapdragons and valley lilies. Silver candelabra held glowing pink tapers and silver plates and glasses contained mints and cakes, daintily embossed in flowers.

Serving punch were Miss Gertrude Smith, Miss Ruby Taylor, Miss Julia Hill Powers and Mrs. Oscar Spivey, all of Macon.

The bride and bridegroom left for a wedding trip to points of interest in North Carolina and upon their return will be at home with the bride's parents at 205 Vineville avenue. Following the bride wore a smart suit of navy blue summer weight wool, the three-quarter length sleeves trimmed with a deep cuff of gray fur. Her hat was a classic wing model of navy straw and ribbon combined and her slippers were of blue kid.

Since the announcement of the engagement of this popular couple they have been the center of social activity in Macon. Among those who have entertained in their honor are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Troutman, Miss Julia Hill Powers, Miss Harriet Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Collins, Mrs. Carter and Mr. and Mrs. George Harrison Henry. Upon their return to the city Mr. and Mrs. Peeples will be entertained at other social affairs.

Prominent Families. The marriage united two of the most prominent families of the state. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jenks Taylor, of Atlanta. She is a member of the Utility Club and of the Mary Hammond Washington chapter of D. D. A. On her maternal side she is the granddaughter of the late Martha Jennings and Dr. William Francis DeWitt, of Albany. Her mother was the former Miss Kathleen DeWitt, of Albany. On her paternal side, the bride is a granddaughter of Sara Stone and Dr. Ezekiel Taylor, of Hawkinsville. Her great-grandfather, the late Mr. Henry Thompson Peeples, of Nashville.

Mr. Leide Presents Program on Life, Works of Wagner

Enrico Leide presented a program on the life and works of Wagner for the Atlanta Music Club in Wesley Memorial auditorium Wednesday morning that was culturally valuable and educationally informative. This program was one of the study course series, of which Mrs. Grace Lee Townsend is chairman. Mr. Leide read a brilliant paper on Wagner that reflected much thought and study. Louis Paduey supplying thematic illustrations at the piano.

That love finds true climax in death, Mr. Leide pointed out, was the psychological viewpoint that Wagner most often treated in his operas. Mr. Leide showed how in all Wagner's works the two main subjects are nature, including the sea, the sky, the birds and flowers, and woman, the redeeming theme of man. This was illustrated by Mr. Paduey with themes from "The Flying Dutchman," "The Tempest at Sea," and the redeeming theme, woman, and themes from "Tannhauser," a drama of sacred and profane love.

Wagner's works were largely autobiographical, portraying in a clear-cut way the composer's own experiences and thoughts. It is an unusual fact that the treatment of his operas, background or inheritance, his father being a clerk of police and his mother a woman of no attainments. He was 17 years old when he first showed signs of musical talent.

Mr. Leide traced in new and interesting manner Wagner's struggles against adverse circumstances, chief among them being poverty and destructive criticism. He was compelled to work under general protest against his methods and ideas. Wagner was the inventor, adopter and promoter of the "leit motif" (leading motive), a theme characteristic of the persons of the drama, or some particular idea or emotion, recurring

On April 3, 1918, the American's creed, written by William Tyler Page, was formally accepted by the United States congress as a fitting creed upon which all patriotic Americans could stand.

Marking the celebration of Jefferson's birth, the historian read a sketch of this statesman's life and the sketch presented to the chapter an engraving of Monticello. Jefferson's home near Charlottesville, Va. Miss Elizabeth Cunningham, pupil of Mrs. Carlton Whitehead, sang an aria from "Madame Butterfly" by Puccini. She was accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Whitehead.

Beauty experts urge these delicate tissues for removing creams and cosmetics, to assure thorough cleanliness. The absorbent tissues blot up dirt along with cleansing cream, leaving pores really clean. Towels are saved from stains.

NEW TYPE Handkerchief Wins Nation!

Thousands acclaim the health value of Kleenex disposable tissues

Schools, doctors, health authorities now advising KLEENEX

KLEENEX has changed the handkerchief habits of a nation! Thousands tried Kleenex—and gave up germ-laden handkerchiefs forever!

Many people began using Kleenex on the advice of doctors. Others, because their own feelings revolted at the use of a damp and soiled handkerchief.

You use and discard

Kleenex is a delicate tissue, so low in cost that you discard it after a single use. No used handkerchief touches your face, to expose your nose and throat to germs and possibly disease. You select each time a new tissue — exquisitely clean, fresh — and softer than old linen.

The use of Kleenex does away with unpleasant handkerchief washing. It is a great saving of money where washing is done commercially.

Kleenex is ideal for children.

For office workers. For use during colds and hay fever. Try Kleenex just once, and the old-time handkerchief will seem uncivilized.

Kleenex comes in smart, modern boxes at 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00. At drug, dry goods and department stores.

BACTERIOLOGICAL TESTS SHOW:

1. That handkerchiefs used by persons having colds may contain as many as 4,170,000 germs per handkerchief.

2. That organisms, representative of those known to be associated with colds, when impregnated upon linen and rinsed in boiling water and/or soap water followed by clear water, were found not to be killed nor appreciably inhibited from growing.

The reports above are based on tests performed in the laboratories of Dr. Bertram Feuer, Chicago bacteriologist.

Record Crowd Expected To See Opener at Spiller's Field Today; Cracker Bats Shell Lookout Hurlers as Club Evens Series, 14-10

RECORD CROWD SLATED TO SEE OPENING GAME

Officials Plan Big Day as Club Returns From Road.

By Ed Danforth,

Inside back of the little green fence right field will be filled with those who never deny themselves the thrill of an opening game and those who will be seeing their first one. That vision is truthful. Once one has seen the pageantry of an opening game, one never fails to return.

Officials of the baseball company announced yesterday that all school children would be admitted for 15 cents per towed head. Imagine that! The sight and sound of a flock of youngsters at an opening ball game would be worth the price of adult admission.

COURTHOUSE CLOSED.
The county courthouse will be closed to all who would transact business this afternoon; employees there have been given a half holiday. Mayor James L. Key thus has declined to declare an official civic half holiday, but if one looks around he is sure to see many a face he elected noble office. That is the only one slightly off key in the whole overture. The Crackers present a new baseball club this year. Johnny Dobbs, the city manager, grizzled in Southern army service, is back. So is Jack Sheehan, the second baseman who was the pivot of the 1930 team. But other faces are new. The others will be making their first opening appearance here.

The Crackers have a bustling, hard-hitting ball club, with a string of capable pitchers. They are able to add their own in the Southern league and might actually win the pennant. At least the consensus of expert opinion around the circuit is that the Crackers are most likely to win.

OLD "BAMA" STAR.
"Red" Barnes in centerfield is the Alabama star who came down last year from the Chicago White Sox. Jack Sheehan at second base is the one old Jack, fielding hard chances smoothly they seem easy.

"Poco" Taitt in left field is a young Texan who can hit the ball on here to you.

Roy Carlyle in right field is a veteran, one of the Norcross boys, who is big at least one over the green.

"Mule" Shirley at first base is the fifth hitter in a murderous line. He has here last season and years before at a Tachell collection.

INFANT OF CLUB.
Johnny Ryan at shortstop is the infant of the club and what an infant. The left hander is a new arrival, exactly in range of his best swing. He was the gift of the White Sox.

The Cracker directors have hinted they would even give higher power was given.

"Chick" Autry, years ago a Cracker-catcher, is the chief receiver again for a tour in the big leagues. He, too, is a potent batter.

Bobby Lamotte at third base is a youngster who knows his way about and hits when ducks are on the pond.

If "Bunny" Hearn is selected to see the opener, fans will see the lightest little man in Southern baseball. Hearn is no bigger than the current pitcher at O'Keefe minor high but his left arm makes baseball scream for mercy.

NIEHOFF RETURNS.
The Lookouts are coming down in charge of Bert Niehoff, the old major leaguer. He is Niehoff who led the Crackers to second place in 1929 and a pennant in 1925. Bert is a pitcher from out west where men are men and pines are still a botanical rarity. He is holding the reins over a pretty good ball club—one that was old enough to beat the Crackers in the first game, anyhow.

Right now I'll gamble that Bert Niehoff's welcome here will be as enthusiastic as that given any Cracker. He old batter is a genuine favorite of our town.

The game will be opened by the usual flag raising ceremony in which United States marines and a brass band will participate.

Atlanta has won 10 out of the last 12 attendance cups offered by President Martin.

And if it does not rain, Atlanta will win No. 11 just as easily.

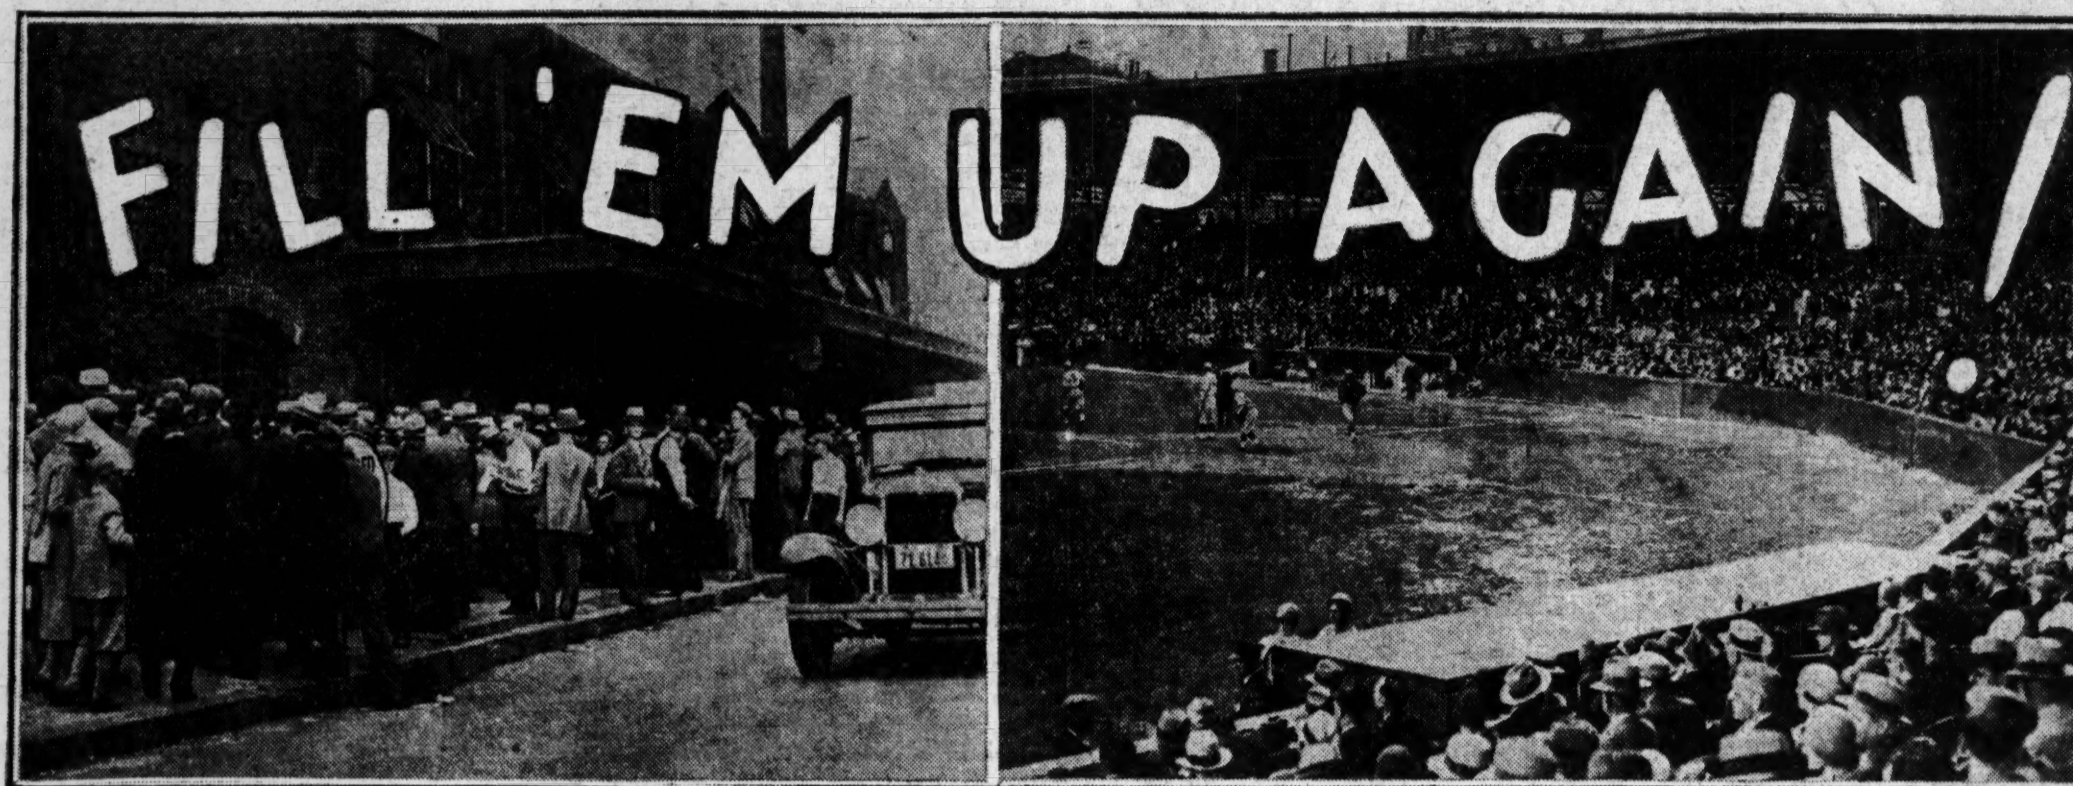

Tech Lacrossemen Leave for Virginia

Nineteen members of the Georgia Tech lacrosse team together with Manager W. M. Sapp and Coach J. B. Senechal left the city Wednesday afternoon for Charlottesville, Va., where they open a series this afternoon with the University of Virginia.

Those players on the trip include: Aaron, E. K. Anding, M. E. Chase, A. G. Coffin, C. L. Curry, W. H. Edwards, C. N. Hill, C. J. Hutcherson, L. Liphum, M. J. Lofburg, G. L. Attem, J. L. Newton, W. J. Noble, P. Persons, H. W. Persons, A. P. Howell, L. G. Smith, H. B. Southern, W. R. Trevett and T. I. Underwood.

Gordon and Monroe Play in Barnesville

BARNESVILLE, Ga., April 15.—Coach Red Barron will bring his team Aggies to Barnesville this week for three games, playing G. I. Thursday and the Gordon Cadets Friday and Saturday.

Where will Atlanta be today? What a silly question to ask! Everybody and his brother will be at the baseball game, of course. If you want to find someone today, just grab your new straw skimmer, a ride, and beat it out to Spiller field—they'll all be there. Atlanta fans have a huge task before them this afternoon. Chattanooga, the Lookout City, turned out to the tune of 17,043 for the opening game between the Crackers and the Lookouts Tuesday, a mark that will be hard to beat. Today the Crackers open their home season, and are looking forward to playing before the largest crowd to witness an opening game in the league this season. They will. It is not like Atlanta to let Chattanooga go them one better. The rest of the town will be there for the first pitch at 3 o'clock. How about you? Above are two scenes of last year's opening-day crowd.

MAWNNIN'
By Ed Danforth

A telegram from the baseball company to the editor of The Constitution asked that we declare a half holiday. Hey, are they kidding us! Why, folks, even our chances are no good opening day. This noble occasion is one day we have to work—and overtime.

Unless the weather furnishes a few vapors, scuds or nimbuses of its own, no other clouds can be found on the horizon as the Crackers come home to open the season with the Chattanooga Lookouts today.

The Fifteen Millionaires have given the town the best minor league manager in the business.

The cast of players is changed; only one man—Jack Sheehan, the wheelhorse of the keystone—will appear in home leav- erty who trotted out a year ago to play for Atlanta.

Poco Taitt has replaced Si Rosenthal in left field; Roy Carlyle has taken the place of Sam Langford in right field; Red Barnes is in centerfield, where Frank Walker patrolled a year ago.

The infield has been shifted with Bobby Lamotte in place of Jim Battle at third; Jack Ryan at short for Jimmy Johnston, and Mule Shirley at first for Dick Burrus. Chick Autry is behind the bat instead of Cliff Yelle.

So far as experts can tell every one of those changes is an improvement. The pitching staff seems adequate; at least strong enough not to make pennant talk out of the question.

The Crackers already function smoothly as a club. They battled the Lookouts for 12 innings to lose when an inspired Lookout poled a home run. Perhaps it was poetic justice that he did so; certainly the Chattanooga cause deserved to win after 17,000 people had crowded into the park to see that very thing done.

Prospects are encouraging for a great season; the club deserves as big a crowd as the park can accommodate.

STRAW HAT DAY, TOO.
Besides everything else, it is straw hat day. Any felt lid or iron hat will be passe. Nothing but straw skimmers go.

And they tell me that anybody failing to wear a new straw today will be a you-know-what.

CHIP ROBERT'S MESSAGE.
This is the word sent to this department by L. W. (Chip) Robert, president of the Crackers, yesterday:

It would be a poor sportsman who could not congratulate the Chattanooga public, Owner Joe Engel and the Chattanooga baseball club on their wonderful showing and victory in the opening game. If I am not mistaken Chattanooga has set a record in comparison with population for attendance at a baseball game. The enthusiasm and spirit of the crowd was as catching as smallpox, and had I not been naturally pulling my head off for Atlanta to win, I feel sure I would have torn up my new straw hat when they won with a home run in the twelfth inning. Just such games and such crowds make baseball the national sport.

I was very proud of our Atlanta team to see how they were fighting against a desperate squad of Chattanooga players, bent on delivering the goods and showing their appreciation of the way the Chattanooga public was supporting them. It is up to us to return the compliment in every way Thursday and I feel certain it will be done.

Which kind of starts things off in a sporting way, does it not? It should be no trick at all for Atlanta to produce 20,000 people today and really show the other cities some stepping. No earthly good can be accomplished by working this afternoon. Come on!

FANS FORGET.
Baseball fans forget past disappointments charmingly. They take reverses very much to heart for a day; then grief is blown away.

When Rogers Hornsby replaced Joe McCarthy as manager of the Cubs late in 1930, fans booed and booed him. They swore they never would come out to see the Cubs play again.

Yet it is a matter of record that the Cubs played to 45,000 opening Tuesday with the once hated Hornsby on the job.

SAUR TO MEET ROUGH RICHARD

Daviscourt Grapples Former Masked Marvel Here Tuesday Night.

Here is some great news for Atlanta wrestling fans. Announcement was made last night by Matchmaker Henry Weber, Atlanta promoter, that he had just closed negotiations for a match here next Wednesday night between Rough Richard Daviscourt and Pete Sauer. This match was landed only after Weber outbid four other promoters and at quite an expense. Weber has been seeking to bring these two wrestlers together for a long time and now that he has succeeded he is confident that Atlanta fans will see the greatest match of the season.

It has been something like a year since Daviscourt, the hard-boiled coast grappler, appeared here, and in that time many a good man has wrestled in Atlanta, but fans still remember the thrills they enjoyed during Richard's matches. He is one of the roughest men to appear here, and for that reason enjoyed a large following—they all wanted to see him beaten.

Sauer, who is known throughout the east as Ray Steele and who first wrestled here as the Masked Marvel, is rated as the outstanding challenger for Jimmy London's heavyweight title. Sauer has fast climbed to the top of the heap. He has met and defeated the best on the way up. Daviscourt will provide a real test Tuesday night. It should be the greatest match of its kind of the season.

An opening match between two good wrestlers will be arranged as soon as possible. Tickets will be placed on sale immediately.

Sophomores Take Emory Leadership

Emory's sophomore baseball team gained undisputed lead of the school baseball league Wednesday afternoon by defeating the senior-med, the most formidable barrier in their path to the championship, 8-2.

The sophomore batters garnered 17 hits off "Mother" Hodges, Bond Fleming, sophomore outfielder got four hits in five times at bat, while laid, another sophomore, hit safely three times in five attempts.

The entire senior-med team was able to gather but three hits against the effective delivery of Dan Landers.

Harry Lange played best for the senior-med, getting two of his team's three hits, one of these a homer, and also making a beautiful catch of a long fly ball.

McMILLEN WINS.
PITTSBURGH, April 15.—(AP)—Jim McMillen, of Chicago, pinned Young Romano, of New York, to the mat after 20 minutes and 6 seconds of wrestling here tonight. McMillen weighed 211 and his opponent 198.

Elberfeld To Visit Emory Freshmen

Today will be a big day in the lives of Emory University freshmen.

Norman "Kid" Elberfeld, the Teasaco Kid himself, will visit the Emory diamond this afternoon and give members of the baseball team special instructions on how the grand old game should be played.

Next week the "Kid" will coach members of the sandlot teams of Decatur. He has been obtained to coach the American Legion sandlot teams throughout the state.

THE SPORTLIGHT

By Grantland Rice

In the Dugout With the Babe.

JUST seventeen years ago a big kid, age 21, went from Baltimore to join the Boston Red Sox. He came along as a lefthanded pitcher and as a lefthanded pitcher he ran up the highest winning average in the history of the game.

On opening day I sat with him in the dugout at the Yankee stadium as the vanguard of 70,000 fans came swarming in to see the start of another season, and also to see whether or not the Babe could lead them. They saw him hit his 579th home run, just one circuit crash beyond the combined home run total of Ty Cobb, Hans Wagner, Napoleon Lajoie and Rogers Hornsby!

The big kid of 1914 was still the big kid of 1931, starting his eighteenth year in the game that made him and the game he helped to make. He never looked better—keener to go than usual, if that is possible. He wanted that home run crown back on his clammy brow and 18 years in harness hadn't dulled his vast enthusiasm for the game.

"How's your golf?" he asked.

"How's yours?" seemed to be a safer rebuttal.

"I was two under 4's in the Belleair open at the 13th hole," the Babe said, "when the deluge broke, and I grabbed off a 71 at St. Pete. How's that?"

"What about the home run market?"

"It's a good buy," he said. "I expect to get my share, even if some one else gets more. I feel better than I did last year and you remember how far I was ahead of my best mark until I hit my hand and never got right again. I'd like to make it 61, anyway."

Even as it was, at that moment he needed only 22 more to make it 600 even for all time. And while some one else may hit more than 600 home runs in the big league, you and I won't be around to see it, so it won't make any difference.

Why They Like Him.
Then the rush began in the dugout. Three more bats to autograph.

"Sure," said the Babe. "I think," he says, "this makes more than a million." Which isn't far wrong. He once autographed 2,500 in one day out west. Then there were score cards to autograph.

"Sure," said the Babe again.

"How many?"

"Then the photographic attack set in. 'Stand here.' 'Stand over there.'"

"Take two bats," said one camera man. "What for?" asked the Babe. "I can use only one at the plate."

"What do you think of the season ahead, Babe?" asked one.

"One of the best baseball has ever known," he said. "These are tough times but don't forget baseball is still a one-dollar game where most of these other sports have lifted the price up around $5, $10 and even $25. This may not be a $5, $10 or a $25 year, so the crowd will stick with the old one-dollar game. Look at those stands. Tough times, but 70,000 already here and still coming in."

"What about the new baseball?" I asked.

"Just about the same," he said. "If you get it right it will go just as far. If you don't, none of them will go. I don't think it will make any difference."

After 17 Years.
When the big jam was on before the game started I asked the Babe if he ever got tired of the autographs, the picture making and the rest of it, after 17 years.

"Not a bit," he said. "Why should I? Baseball is not only my business but my fun. If I ever got tired I couldn't hide it from anyone and I wouldn't be any good. Look at old Cy." He said. Wilky Moore was just taking his place in batting practice.

"I bet him $250 once he wouldn't take a clean hit and two swinging bunts he didn't intend to make, and I had to buy him two miles. And he still got 'em."

The feature of the Babe's 1931 debut was not his home run. It was the fleet and light airy way he pilfered second, beating a good throw with fast footwork and a tidy slide. If he has lost a touch of speed, this dash failed to disclose any such thing.

A Mexico City sport center has been erected at the cost of approximately half a million dollars.

TECH HIGH ENDS BOXING TOURNEY

Good Bouts Please Crowd as Smithie Champions Are Crowned.

Finals in the annual Tech High boxing tournament were held Wednesday night in the Henry Grady gym with one of the best amateur fight cards that has ever been staged here. There was not a dull moment on the entire card and several of the fights were forced to the fourth round before a decision was reached by the judges.

The youngsters gave everything they had, even though the science in some of the bouts was not as polished as that in other rings, but it was a give and take proposition that pleased a capacity audience.

Homer Sears, southeastern amateur and G. I. A. flyweight champion, retained his title with a well-earned decision over Lee Grubbs in the opening bout on the program.

Mutt Morris and Michael Welch, two former Smithie football captains, fought an unusually good fight in the heavyweight class. Morris retained his Tech High title. He won last year from Welch, despite Mike's Sene-gambian second.

Stokes Tumlum won the middleweight title in another of his four-round fights. In three eliminations, Tumlum was forced into the extra round to win, and again Wednesday he came back strong with a victory over Dick Courney, another of the football stars.

Ossie Smith, a reserve lineman last year, won the light-heavy title from I. Lockland in a comical bout. Lockland had a peculiar way of covering up and guarding but Smith bored in with both fists and won a close decision.

Billy Wilson was extended to the fourth round to win the welterweight title from E. N. York in one of the best fights of the card. It was chock full of excitement.

W. L. Patrick won the bantamweight title in a hard-fought bout with E. W. Ferguson. Chester Stechel defeated Joe Hilby for the featherweight title and Frank Killian jabbed his way to the lightweight title over Fielder Hearn.

As the crowd attraction on the card, A. K. Bell, Georgia light-heavyweight wrestling champion, mixed holds with Young Rubley, a Tech High star, in a 30-minute exhibition.

Officials of the bouts were: Styles Attaway, referee; L. H. Cunningham and W. C. Attaway, judges, and a Charley Byrd and J. H. McLaughlin, time-keeper. E. S. Sheppard, a Tech High professor, promoted the tournament, which proved a success in every way.

G. M. A. and Russell To Meet On Track

G. M. A.'s reserve track team will meet Russell High's varsity squad at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon in a dual match on the College Park campus.

It is the opening of the Russell schedule and the first of a series of meets for the Cadet reserves.

Hearn To Pitch Game Here Today

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 15.—Bunny Hearn, the stocky little left-hander with the great curve ball, will pitch against the Lookouts in Atlanta Thursday when the season opens for the Crackers fans.

Hearn was nominated here this afternoon at the conclusion of the game.

Bert Niehoff, Chattanooga manager, was uncertain as to who would work. It is possible that Clyde Barfoot, who pitched two innings Tuesday, will be recalled.

CARLYLE LEADS HEAVY ATTACK TO WIN SECOND

Atlanta Sluggers Rout

Return Today.

By Ralph McGill.
Staff Correspondent.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 15.—Atlanta's heavy artillery which in the season's opener on Tuesday sound-ed like Little Willie's Christmas pop-gun, thundered out a 14-to-10 victory over the Lookouts here this afternoon to make the teams one-all as they move on Atlanta for the opener Thursday.

It is necessary to drag out the rural correspondent's phrase that the score did not really represent the superiority of the Crackers.

The Crackers were leading 14 to 6 through the sixth inning after Andy Messenger, the starting pitcher, tired in the seventh and allowed four runs. Climax Blethen, who relieved him, had his feet on the handlebars coasting in the ninth. He allowed two hits and walked two and then saw Pat Simmons, the third Lookout pitcher, hit a triple to score three men and run the total to 10 runs.

CRACKERS HIT HARD.
As an indication of just what sort of baseball the Crackers played, one has but to peer at the hits, runs and the left on bases. Atlanta made 17 hits and 14 runs. Only four men were left on bases, all of which proved that when a hit was needed it was forthcoming.

Roy Carlyle, the nonpareil from Norcross, was the hitting hero of the day with four hits in five times up. They included three doubles and one triple. Carlyle was the star of the opening day overflow crowd he led on the field one blow would have gone for a home run. Ground rules held it down.

Carlyle also drove in three runs. He was not the only hitter of the day who supplied a mount for mates who were on the bases. Mule Shirley, who has taken an unmerciful razzing from the Lookout fans, drove in three runs.

LUTHER ALSO STARS.
Chick Autry, who was again behind the plate, drove in three runs also. They were the boys who led in getting in the runs although Bob Le-nard and John (Blondy) Ryan were not far behind. They each were responsible for two runs.

The Crackers figuratively gave a wild yell and burst from their cells today. The loss of Tuesday's game which they should have won, irked them considerably. They came back today swinging loosely and with accurate curve balls on Tuesday they were tighter than a bridge rivet and inaccurate of eye.

Dixie Davis was the lamb which went to the slaughter this afternoon. He was hit for three runs by three whom Bert Niehoff called out. Look at his stats in the fourth and fifth innings. He was hit for three runs in the eighth and ninth.

SCORING BY THREES.
The Crackers started scoring early, getting three runs in the first inning. The scoring went on after two were down. The first three were just like asparagus. The three in the first were followed by three more in the fourth. The fifth was three more come trotting over the fence. The seventh was the big inning with five runs in home before Simmons could find the combination to stop them.

With two gone in the first Taitt doubled and scored when Carlyle punched him over the fence for three bases. Shirley doubled to lead off the first and was brought home himself by Ryan.

That was a sample of the Crackers' blinding in runs. They used no strategy at all. They simply exploded the dynamic charges necessary to blow them home.

HOW THEY DO HIT!
Of the 17 Atlanta base hits seven were for extra bases, two triples and five doubles. It was hitting such as the Crackers fans grew accustomed to during the spring, and the hitting run the club in a gleeful mood. For a while they were fearful that a jinx was haunting them as long as they were in the shadow of Lookout mountain. They dropped two games here last season when the Lookouts rallied late. Tuesday two defeats started the Crackers down hill and before John Dobbs could get his brake bands to 0, and the game had only minutes to go. The ball went down in a fury of old Notre Dame fighting spirit to Indiana's 7-yard line. The third quarter ended, and, by the rules, I could substitute anyone I wanted. Gipp, the cripple, came to me and insisted upon going in. Reluctantly I consented.

Rockne's Own Story

He charged on the field and the stands rose to acclaim. Rarely have I seen a more thrilling sight than those stands, gaunt in dusk, banked thousands, screaming the name of one man—Gipp!

GIPP MARKED.

Of course, he was marked. The Indiana men, their first victory over us in 30 years smelling sweet in their nostrils, weren't going to let a crippled hero beat them. But the crippled hero had something to say about that. He tried once—disabling runs, passing. With a smashed shoulder he smashed the line—and failed.

He tried again. Taking the ball, he crouched into a self-driven battering ram. Smash—and over he went!

But I'm stressing too much the picturesque and dramatic offensive plays that brought George Gipp into the limelight—in which he knew how to comport himself without the slightest increase in self-esteem, or the remotest hint of condescension towards humbler members of the combination on which he played.

Gipp was a master of defense as well. And I can say of him what cannot, I believe, be said of any other football player, certainly not of any other Notre Dame player—that not a single forward pass was ever completed in territory defended by George Gipp. He had the timing of a tiger in pouncing on its prey. He never missed.

A GREAT PLAYER.

A great player—that everybody who knew him in and out of school called "a great guy"—Gipp had a weakness. Before I learned at firsthand what it was I had seen a striking exhibition of it in a football game. Those who saw the Army-Notre Dame game in 1920 may remember that at a point when the Army led us by 17 to 14 near the end of the first half Gipp did a strange thing. The quarterback called for a kick, and our men set in motion for formation. Gipp was to kick, and the position sent him behind his own goal line. As even a neophyte knows, when behind your own goal line there is only one orthodox thing to do—and that is kick. The Army, a citadel of orthodox football, knew the kick was coming, and they were pressing to receive it to keep their score ahead of Notre Dame's.

But Gipp was not orthodox. Passing another player, Kiley, on his way to receive the ball he warned him:

"When I get the ball, tear ahead. I'll pass it."

Gipp took the snap-back, poised to kick. Army charged. Before a finger could touch him he had side-stepped and thrown the ball 45 yards to Kiley in a field as free as the ocean. But Kiley, for the first and only time in his career, dropped the ball.

That was gambling—absolute gambling. Gipp made amends—for a mistake he hadn't committed—by ripping the Army line to pieces in the second half and putting his team in front for the final count of 27 to 17; but he had proved to me that he was a gambler.

The lad never knew how personally popular he was among and above a popular team. When Grantland Rice and other prominent sports writers went for the first time to West Point to report an Army-Notre Dame game and to view this wonder-man Gipp, their staccato praise the next day meant little to him. An ordinarily self-appreciative player would have bought every newspaper in sight and read the clippings until he'd memorized them backwards. Gipp didn't even read them once! So far as I'm aware, he never posed for a photograph. The only photo I have of him is one snapped on the playing field.

ATHLETIC CELEBRITY.

It became national news when George Gipp died. But that was only the measure of his athletic celebrity. What was never in the news was his utter gameness.

I bent over this boy of 23—who had scaled the glamorous heights of all boyhood dreams by shining as a national football hero. The White Sox had just bid for his baseball service on graduation. Walter Camp had just named him All-American fullback.

"It's pretty tough to go," said someone at the bedside.

"What's tough about it?" Gipp smiled up at us feebly. "I've no complaint."

He turned to me.

"I've got to go, Rock," he said. "It's all right. I'm not afraid." His eyes brightened in a frame of pallor. "Some time, Rock," he said, "when the team's up against it, when things are wrong and the breaks are beating the boys—then to go in there with all they've got and win just one for the Gipper. I don't know where I'll be then, Rock. But I'll know it, and I'll be happy."

In 1928 the team had a tough season—a punishing season—cracked by Wisconsin in its second game, licked by Georgia Tech. All but demoralized. Then came the Army—Gipp's old love and hate. The Cadets had spread ruin almost everywhere that year. And they were out to give Notre Dame the beating of years. At the half we were even, 0-0.

For the first time since Gipp's death I told the boys what he had said. These lads on that 1928 team had never met Gipp—had never seen him. But Gipp is a legend in Notre Dame. Every football writer at the half time said that Notre Dame would be beaten badly. It looked as if we were weakening. But the boys came out for the second half exalted, inspired, overpowering. They won. As Chevigny slashed through for the winning touchdown he said: "That's one for the Gipper!"

adjusted the club was mired deep in the second division.

"Well, we feel better now," said John Dobbs, after the game. "We won't have any start such as we had last year when the club dropped eight straight games. The boys know they can hit and they went right back today. The crowd yesterday was a handicap to both teams but it hurt our free swingers more. One can't bawl off and swing at a ball when he can see the whites of the spectators' eyes in center field."

The Crackers played a good, steady game this afternoon. The Lookouts, in marked contrast, were given in their fielding, especially in the outfield. The infield was not entirely guiltless, however. Once Harley Boss, as he came under a fly ball, was bumped into by Vally Dashiell, and the ball fell safe. Gus Felix and Babe Phelps, in the outfield, both had errors.

OUTFIELD WEAK.

The Chattanooga outfield was pointed out in a pre-opener story by this reporter as being the weak spot of the team. It looked great on Tuesday but this afternoon a glaring weakness in fielding and judgment was noticeable.

Bert Niehoff and Joe Engel, manager and owner, respectively, are brightening the faces of telegraph company directors by their use of wires in an effort to buy or borrow two outfielders.

Blethen finished the game, working the eighth and ninth today. Messenger tired in the seventh and Dobbs took no chance of having him hurt his arm by pitching further.

NOT MUCH DANGER.

The Crackers were never in any danger of losing the game even in the late innings when the club had slowed up. One doesn't retain the competitive edge when one is seven or eight runs ahead. Blethen got rid of Treadaway, the most dangerous

Pot Shots and Nibbles

By Zan Heyward

With fishin' time comin' on, it's just about open season on crickets, grasshoppers, cockroaches and so on, but it's a pity boll weevils don't make good fish bait.

If it's true that there's two sides to every story, then a fishin' story ought to run about like this:

Fisherman's Side: "Yes, sir, he hit that bait like a ton of bricks. Must have weighed at least five pounds. Never had such a fight in my life, and I sure had a time keepin' a tight line on him. Almost got him to the boat twice, but each time he'd tear out again. Finally he gives a yank and snaps the line right off at the plug. He sure was a whopper!"

Fish's Side: "Of course I'm just a little fish but I sure had a whale of a time today. Got a fisherman all hot and bothered and then threw him down cold. He was usin' one of these fancy lookin' painted bait and, as it came splashin' through the water I grabbed the line just above it and gave an awful yank. He laid onto me, but I took a twist around a lily pad for a second then let him sort of drag me in a bit. Finally I got tired fowl-in' with him, wrapped the line around a snag, gave a jerk and broke it off. Bet he hasn't finished talkin' about it yet. These fishermen sure are suckers."

Accordin' to Daniel Webster "automatic" means doin' something without thinkin', but that ain't any excuse for one of 'em jammin' on you in a duck blind.

hitter on the Lookout team, who was first up in the ninth. He then slowed up and four runs scored.

The Lookouts got 10 hits, seven of them coming in the last three innings. Messenger allowed but three hits through the first six periods.

And so the Crackers are coming home Thursday, confident they will give the Lookouts a battle and take the series of three games scheduled for Atlanta.

PETRELS MEET JACKETS HERE LAST OF WEEK

Two Teams Clash in Rose
Bowl in First Series
Friday.

Hot after pitchers. That's the way Kid Clay, coach of the Georgia Tech baseball team, is these days. For Coach Kid is staring right smack at a schedule which calls for eight straight games for his Jackets. The stretch opens Friday at the Rose Bowl, lapses, as per custom, over the Sabbath, and gets right back in there Monday to last until next Saturday.

The Jackets face Coach Frank Anderson's Petrels Friday and Saturday; Mercer Monday and Tuesday; Auburn Wednesday and Thursday; and Auburn Friday and Saturday. Which is a right sizeable amount of games. The pitchers are due to take plenty of punishment ere the halt is called.

Tech fell to the bottom rung of the Dixie League ladder in the recent series at Gainesville, where the Gators took two decisions. The eight battles, all set for the Rose Bowl, offer the opportunity for a meteoric rise to the flag position. It all depends on the moundmen. Rather, on whether or not the staff is too small to allow the necessary recuperation between games. The youngsters can't be expected to toe the rubber day in and day out and keep effective. It's a real task, the one ahead for the Jackets.

Auburn's Tigers clung to the top post in the league standings as a result of their split with the Petrels Monday and Tuesday. Florida hopped into second place by trimming Tech twice, the pair sending the Jackets below Georgia and Mercer, who split and remained tied.

The Tech-Oglethorpe series is the only one set in the league for the week-end. The standings as the Jackets and Petrels go to bat follow:

CLUB.....W.....L.....Pct.
Auburn.....5.....1......833
Florida.....5.....1......150
Oglethorpe.....3.....3......500
Mercer.....2.....4......333
Georgia.....2.....4......333
Tech.....1.....3......250

THE YELLOW WINGS GO TO WORK.

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Though humble be the home you build, You'll find it is with treasure filled.—Yellow Wing the Flicker.

The Yellow Wings were called silly and foolish and absurd and crazy by their neighbors in the Old Orchard and they didn't even know that there were any neighbors around. They had eyes only for each other. They just didn't see other folks. That is because they were very much in love with each other.

Mrs. Yellow Wing shook her head. "I want a new house," said she. "Of course, we will look at those old houses, but I am sure they will not do. I want nice, bright, new walls around me and a bed of nice new chips. I want the best house we've ever had."

Breakfast over, Mrs. Yellow Wing led the way straight to their last year's home. It was in a hollow in the trunk of an apple tree in the Old Orchard. Curiously enough they hadn't looked at it since their return from the sunny south.

"It looks good to me," said Yellow Wing as he alighted beside her just below the doorway. "I always was fond of this home."

After Yellow Wing thrust her head in the doorway, to be greeted by a hiss that sent her tumbling backward so that it was only by the quick use of her wings that she saved herself from a fall to the ground. She flew to the next tree, Yellow Wing following and anxiously asking what was the matter.

"Matter enough!" exclaimed Mrs. Yellow Wing indignantly. "Mrs. Spooky the Screech Owl is in there, and I do believe she is sitting on eggs. The nerve of her to take our house!"

"Well, my dear, you know it was empty and any one had a right to an empty house," said Yellow Wing mildly.

"That doesn't make a bit of difference," sputtered Mrs. Yellow Wing. "That was our house, and she certainly has her nerve with her to be so impudent and actually acting as if we have no business to so much as look in. Well, that settles things so far as that house is concerned."

She flew over to the edge of the Green Forest to the very tree where Yellow Wing had begun drumming his tail for several days on the trunk of which they had once nested. In fact they had cut out that hollow themselves.

It is of no use for you to look there, cried Yellow Wing as he caught up with her. "Chatterer the Red Squirrel is living there."

All right," let him, snapped Mrs. Yellow Wing. "I want a new house, so we'll waste no more time looking at old ones. I know just what I want and where I want it. Yellow Wing, my dear, let me say no more about old houses."

Yellow Wing meekly did as ordered. She led the way to a big telephone pole beside in the Chamber building, at Farmer Brown's house. About a third of the way up she stopped. "There is a soft spot here," said she. "We'll get to work at once."

Yellow Wing said nothing, but when she stopped to rest he took her place and went to work with a will.

MILICAN TO REVIVE TRAFFIC COURT PLAN

Alderman G. Everett Millican announced Wednesday he would ask the committee at its session tonight to revive the proposal to establish a centrally located traffic court, where minor offenses can be settled by payment of a small fine on entering of guilty pleas.

"A court of this type is needed badly," he said. "It will be a big factor in law enforcement, and also will raise some additional revenue."

"If a charter amendment is necessary, we should take the necessary steps to secure it. Atlanta needs the court. Many other cities have such provisions already."

The committee meeting at 7:30 o'clock.
